Today

Try to Be Thankful.
Good Times Ahead.
A Monster in Ice.
A Naked Race? Never.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

TOMORROW COMES Thanksgiving Day, only a few hours are left to find reasons for thankfulness.

You are alive, and have chances left.

Your country is not yet in the League of Nations.

Bootlegging, racketeering and official corruption have become so bad that they can't get worse.

Other countries are worse off than we, a poor comfort, but some comfort.

There is no famine, plague, war or real panic.

In fact, we have too much of everything, coal, sugar, oil, wheat and turkeys are cheap.

Be thankful if you can feel thankful. It is good for the health. Pessimism and bitterness injure heart and mind.

WALTER SHERMAN GIFFORD, head of the gigantic American Telephone and Telegraph Company, expects good times to drive out bad times, SOON. His opinion is important, for the telephone company, reaching everywhere and everybody, is well informed.

Gifford thinks we are going to see such prosperity as never was, and we may enjoy a sort of Utopia, with the spirit of service and good will governing big business.

It's a lovely picture, but let us hope better times will come without waiting for the Utopia. That will not come until human nature shall have changed, say in 10,000 years, probably longer.

THIS NEWS WILL keep scientists from sleeping.

On Glacier Island, near Cordova, in Alaska, a strange creature has been found imprisoned in a block of ice. It looks like a giant lizard with fur, in perfect condition.

The head is six feet long, the total length nearly 50 feet. Millions of years ago, probably before men had appeared on earth, that creature was locked up in solid ice and preserved through the tens of thousands of centuries.

Heart, lungs are all awaiting scientific examination. The find will add an important chapter to man's knowledge of things as they once were.

PROFESSOR FLUGEL, of the London University, says "the world is approaching nudism."

He believes that men are getting tired of wearing clothes, will soon abandon them and women will lead the way.

In this country they have led the way, part way.

"AS A SCIENTIST," Prof. Flugel predicts that women will force the human race to go back to absolute nakedness. But it can't "go back" to anything of the kind.

If the race had ever been absolutely naked it would not have survived.

It used to be covered with hair, generally red, in the North, and very thick, reaching from the forehead to the toes. That got wet and couldn't be taken off to dry. Intelligence suggested clothes instead, and hair gradually disappeared as clothes were worn. The more hair, the less civilized.

THE PROFESSOR is mistaken in his idea that clothing is "an episode in the history of humanity." Clothing is a part of comfort and common sense, also a part of decency, and decency will last.

In addition, nothing on earth, except a lot of worms in a little boy's fishing can, could be uglier than a lot of men and women naked. They would look and be so silly that they could not think.

FOR MILLIONS of years nature worked in Africa, making the skin of men black and tightly curling their hair to counteract the deadly tropical sun. Without the blackness and curliness men could not have survived.

A LITTLE WHILE ago in St. Louis, Mrs. Walker, a widow, colored, who took in washing to support her little girl, had an idea. She invented something to "take the kinks out of hair too tightly curled."

She is dead, her daughter lives in Paris, an auctioneer is selling the contents of her house that cost more than half a million dollars.

Moral: Get an idea, develop it, and it will make you rich, especially if it appeals to human vanity.

NEW YORK, HAVING been rather supercilious about crime and rackets in Chicago, the Big Lake City, will attend with some interest to revelations in New York.

One individual, a court official, confesses that he has regularly taken bribes from lawyers representing miserable women accused of vice.

The women, acquitted, paid their lawyers well. At least one magistrate made a specialty of having such cases brought to his court, and doubtless got his share.

Lawyers, plenty of them "sworn officers of the court," were engaged in bribery as a profession, backed with blackmail of unfortunate women as a source of profit.

PRESIDENT HOOVER does not approve a Department of Justice campaign to discourage local racketeering. For the government to interfere is "a reflection on the sovereignty and stamina of state governments."

That is true, but when state governments and great cities prove that they have neither "sovereignty nor stamina" somebody must do something.

Jury Bringing Acquittal Criticised by Prosecutor In Shooting of Mate

Tried for the slaying of her husband, Stephen, in the office of Desertion and Non-Support Court last August, Clara Paulscak, 24, was found not guilty by a jury in Criminal Court today after less than two hours' deliberation.

Mrs. Paulscak swooned when the foreman announced the verdict. She was revived a few minutes later and then was led from the room. Friends went to her side and offered congratulations. There was no demonstration when the verdict was announced.

Branding the verdict as the "worst rendered in the Allegheny County Courthouse, Assistant District Attorney Earl T. Adair declared:

"Gun play will rule the country unless jurors decide cases on the evidence. Here is a good looking woman who shot down her husband, and the jury acquits her."

The jury retired shortly after 11 a. m. and returned from its deliberations at 1:20 p. m.

HEARS CASE ARGUED

VOTE MACHINE SAMPLE HERE

Eight men unloaded the apparatus from a truck in the courtyard and took it to the County Commissioners' office, where Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong and Commissioner Charles C. McGovern tried their hands in its operation. Both indicated they were well-pleased.

The machine, operated by any of three methods—house current, manually, or by batteries—will be on display for several days. It was built by the Poole Voting Machine Company, of Baltimore, Md., and is a sample of those Allegheny County contracted for.

GENEVA, Nov. 26.—(INS.)—An agreement between France and Italy on the naval disarmament problem has been reached here, it was rumored in League circles today.

Happy Landings Are Headed by Charley Levine

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Charley Levine in Vienna.

Judge Crater. Somewhere. We hope.

Levine's landing in Vienna was perfect. They only got him on one point.

Charley said all he wanted was medals like Lindbergh's.

They say Charley was using a queer looking wishbone.

Vienna doesn't object to Charley making medals. So long as he doesn't make 'em too round.

Wishing for medals like Lindbergh's is preposterous. First thing you know, lunch wagons will be demanding cover charges like Tex Guinan's.

Charley is going to have his turkey handed to him out of a window tomorrow.

PLOT CHIEF NAMES 5 NATIONS

Britain and France Aided Conspiracy to Upset Red Rule, Moscow Trial Told

MOSCOW, Nov. 26.—(AP.)—England and France were depicted as malevolent plotters seeking to intervene in Soviet Russia and overthrow the communist regime by Prof. Leonid Ramzin, "confessing" before a revolutionary tribunal trying him for high treason.

Prof. Ramzin, speaking into a microphone which carried his voice to the furthest reaches of the Communist Federation, told an amazing story of intrigue, mentioning casually as co-plotters with him, former President Poincare, of France; Atristide Briand, French foreign minister; "Col. Lawrence" and "Lord Churchill," of England, and other figures of the two countries.

SUPPORT WANED

The defendant, leader of a group of eight Soviet engineers facing death sentences on their pleas of guilty to the counter revolutionary conspiracy, declared that British support to the plot waned after the second MacDonald regime was established in 1929, and relations with the Soviet were reestablished. Thereafter, he said, the French and border countries, Poland, Rumania and Jugoslavia, were the principal conspirators.

Meanwhile, millions of Russians, hardy Siberian peasants, bearded mountaineers of the Caucasus, and dwellers of the Soviet cities were sitting before radios listening to the Soviet engineers talk their lives away.

CROWDS URGE DEATH

As the trial opened, snow-covered streets echoed with the cries of more than half a million demonstrants who flaunted banners demanding the death penalty for "agents of imperialism," "initiators of intervention" and "agents of our class enemies." Other slogans were: "No mercy

Advertisers Raise Budgets for 1931

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—A preliminary report on replies to questionnaires sent out by the Financial Advertisers' Association on next year's advertising budgets is rather optimistic. Of 37 returns, 15 have answered that their appropriations for 1931 will be increased. The increases range from 3 to 100 per cent and average 22 per cent.

Bathhouse Coughlin Fills in as Mayor

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—(AP.)—John (Bathhouse) Coughlin held the reins of Chicago's city government for a time yesterday—the third time in his 38 years' membership in City Council—when Mayor William Hale Thompson, on advice of his physicians, took a rest. The Mayor recently underwent an emergency appendicitis operation.

Coxey Calls Meeting For Jobless March

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(INS.)—Gen. Jacob S. Coxey, who led a famous unemployment march on Washington in 1894, was to hold a meeting today to plan for another march on the capital. The general had a meeting scheduled yesterday, but he was the only one who showed up.

VOTE PROBERS' PAY REFUSED

Objection by County Commissioner C. C. McGovern today blocked payment of $1,135.75 to Attorneys Donald C. Anderson and Robert B. Greer, who as representatives of the Election Fraud Commission of the Allegheny Bar Association, were named to investigate charges of graft in the 1929 primary election. McGovern said:

"We were willing to appropriate $10,000 for a constructive investigation of the election fraud charges. These men fooled around, never got anywhere and made no intelligent report."

On motion of Commissioner E. V. Babcock, seconded by McGovern, the commissioners refused payment of the bill.

Docket charges in the bill were $12.75 and the balance was for the attorneys' appearance before the registration commission and Common Pleas Court.

Busch Heiress Weds, On U. S. Flying Trip

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—(AP.)—Lilly Claire Von Gontard, reputedly the wealthiest heiress of Berlin and granddaughter of the late Adolphus Busch, St. Louis brewer, sailed today aboard the liner Bremen as Frau Werner Schleber for a flying wedding trip to the American home of her family. She was married to Werner Schleber, wealthy German manufacturer, yesterday. From New York the couple will fly to St. Louis, and then fly back in time to catch the Bremen sailing for Germany on December 6.

Relief for Needy, Charity Toward Sick and Jailed, Mark Holiday Here

Pittsburgh, joining with the nation, will celebrate Thanksgiving Day tomorrow with a gesture of charity never before so pretentiously attempted.

Those in comfortable circumstances will feed the destitute and needy, and all will join in thanks for many favors received during the past year, despite business depression and unemployment.

Many churches will hold special services and charity organizations will feed thousands. Hospitals and penal institutions will serve special dinners to inmates and patients.

All departments of the postoffice will be closed and no carrier deliveries will be made. Collections will be made according to regular holiday schedule. Special delivery and perishable parcels will be delivered according to Sunday schedule.

HELPING HAND DINNER

The Helping Hand Society, Water street, will serve a chicken dinner at 6 o'clock tomorrow night.

Dick Ware, Larry Duncan and other entertainers from the Plaza Restaurant at 8:30 tonight will entertain the inmates. This is the first recreational program to be staged for the unemployed here, according to James Mills, recreational director.

Inmates of the Western Penitentiary, according to Warden Stanley P. Ashe, will be given a baked ham dinner with all the trimmings. Entertainment will be provided.

At the county jail, local talent vaudeville will be a feature, according to Warden John McNeil, and a roast beef dinner will be the piece de resistance.

The Salvation Army has provided 1,500 dinners for as many families over Thanksgiving Day.

WELFARE DRIVE EXTENDED

Officials of the Welfare Fund, at a meeting in the William Penn Hotel last night to report on the final day's receipts for the annual drive for $1,520,000 for relief work in Pittsburgh, decided to extend the drive another week.

A. K. Oliver, chairman of the campaign, announced that the day's reports showed collections and pledges of $247,812, bringing the total of the drive, which opened November 12, to $1,408,424, or about $100,000 short of the goal.

It was announced that the drive will continue daily until next Tuesday, when workers will gather in the William Penn for a final report. The usual noon meetings will not be held, it was said.

About 500 officials and workers attended the dinner. The principal speaker was the Rev. Dr. Edwin J. Van Etten, pastor of Calvary Episcopal Church.

Dolores Del Rio Ill; Doctors to Operate

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 26.—(AP.)—Dolores Del Rio, Mexican film actress, was reported by her physician, Dr. E. C. Fishbaugh, to be in a delirious codition in a hospital here today. Dr. Fishbaugh said he and Dr. Arthur B. Cecil would perform a delicate kidney operation upon the actress.

Miss Del Rio

$498,000 ASKED IN ROAD ERROR

The Pennsylvania Water Company is asking $498,023 to permit the county to rectify an engineering "bungle" by straightening the Allegheny River boulevard through the company's property at Nadine pumping station, Public Works Director Norman F. Brown reported to the County Commissioners today.

A set-up of costs prepared by George S. Davison, president of the water company, was referred to the law department at the suggestion of Commissioner C. C. McGovern to "see what redress the people have in this enormous additional cost for a terrible blunder."

Legislation should be asked if necessary to protect the public interest, McGovern declared.

Brown suggested that another conference be held with Davison, and that meanwhile he would draw up an alternative plan and costs.

Commissioner J. G. Armstrong interjected:

"No one is going to sandbag me."

Davison's schedule of costs includes physical cost, $351,223; property cost, $12,300; buildings, $24,500; operation and maintenance of coal tunnel, $100,000; services of engineer, $10,000.

The original estimated cost of the boulevard was $3,500,000.

Machine Gun Gang Robs Bank, 4 Held

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 26.—(AP.)—Five men, armed with pistols and a machine gun, held up the State Bank at Kincaid, a mining town, today and escaped in an automobile with $3,000 and possibly a $75,000 payroll. Four of the gunmen were captured by Springfield policemen at the edge of the Capital within an hour after the robbery.

15 DEGREES FORECAST TONIGHT

Relief Rushed to Distressed Families; Four Hurt in Falls; Most Roads Open

A cold wave that will send the temperature to between 10 and 15 degrees tonight enveloped Pittsburgh and environs today, as a mantle of snow covered the district, impeding traffic, causing numerous skidding accidents and intensifying distress in homes of thousands.

Several persons were hurt in falls on icy streets.

Relief organizations redoubled efforts in the face of the bitter cold, bending their energies particularly to supplying food and fuel over Thanksgiving.

Hundreds of homeless and unemployed men were sheltered and fed by the city's charitable organizations, while workers were assembling baskets to be delivered to destitute families.

BUSES REROUTED

Treacherous roadways through Schenley Park caused more than a score automobiles to skid off the driveways near the Hobart street entrance and slippery boulevards delayed automobile traffic during the morning rush hours.

Squirrel Hill motor buses were rerouted after one machine skidded from the roadway in the park. Fenders and bumpers were buckled and damaged as drivers were unable to control their machines, collided in rapid succession. Traffic in Bigelow boulevard and the Boulevard of the Allies proceeded slowly. City workmen scattered ashes on the highways to prevent further tie-ups.

FIVE HURT IN FALLS

Five casualties from icy pavements and streets were reported.

Dorothy Morrell, 20, of 304 North Aiken avenue, suffered a possible skull fracture this afternoon when she slipped on the icy pavement in Aiken avenue, her head striking the rear end of an automoible driven by John F. Sweeney, 5264 Butler street. The girl was taken to the Homeopathic Hospital, and Sweeney was arrested on a reckless driving charge.

Attorney William Tredway, 68, with offices in the Park Building, slipped and fell while crossing the Smithfield Street Bridge, and was removed to Mercy Hospital suffering from a lacerated scalp.

Peter Williams, 79, of 1218 Bedford avenue, slipped while crossing Grant street at Fifth avenue, and fell in the path of a Mt. Lebanon street car. Cut and bruised, he was removed to Mercy Hospital.

Mrs. Jennie Goines, a Negro, suffered a possible skull fracture when she fell in front of her home, 76 Henderson street, North Side. She was removed to Allegheny General Hospital.

Miss Nora Roach, of 1554 Hubbard street, secretary to Magistrate William Soost, Traffic Court, suffered leg injuries when she slipped and fell near her home while en route to her office. She is in St. John's Hospital.

John Kress, 25, of Verona, riding with his brother, Albert, is in Columbia Hospital with a laceration of the scalp, received when their truck skidded and collided with another truck operated by Carol Stewart, 543 Cora street, at Braddock and Finance avenues.

State highway department officials said that while some of the

Aimee Under Armed Guard, Mother Is Skeptical

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 26.—(INS.)—Armed guards today continued to pace back and forth in front, also in back, of Aimee Semple McPherson's home. Why a guard was necessary was a matter of conjecture. If anyone knew, they were not divulging it.

Meanwhile a wide variety of reports were available concerning the health of the noted evangelist. Some of them had her near death, others had it she was on the mend and her doctors asserted there was nothing the matter with her organically but that it would be some time before she could occupy the pulpit.

From other sources, however, it was learned that the evangelist planned to mount the Angelus platform tomorrow.

The evangelist's mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, stood by and watched the proceedings with a skeptical eye.

She said:

"I am watching and waiting. I don't want any scandal, but I am going to raise my voice in protest if I think any attempt is being made to pull a fake."

Bratianu Snubs Carol Over Magda Lupescu

BUCHAREST, Nov. 26.—(INS.)—A sensation was caused in political circles here today when Vintila Bratianu, leader of the Liberal party, refused to appear for an audience with King Carol.

The scheduled audience had been heralded as forecasting a possible raprochement between the sovereign and Bratianu, a former prime minister. Bratianu staunchly opposed the return of the exiled king to Rumania.

Informed observers laid the new development to a dispute over the king's insistence on retaining Mme. Magda Lupescu, his companion in exile, in the royal palace here, which is said to have forced postponement and possibly abandonment of Carol's coronation.

PARK ACTS TO END CANCELLIERE-BERARDINO FEUD

ASKS FINES INSTEAD OF PRISON

Visiting Judge Levies $250 On Pair to Relieve County From Part of High Costs

District Attorney Andrew T. Park today in Criminal Court moved to end the Cancelliere-Berardino family litigation which has moved through county and superior courts.

Park, before Visiting Judge William P. Darr, recommended that sentences of six months in the workhouse to Joseph C. and John C. Cancelliere and M. Berardino be changed to one year probation and a fine of $250 for each of the brothers, and parole with a $250 fine for Berardino, the brother-in-law.

COSTLY TO COUNTY

Park told the court:

"I am recommending this change because I believe this litigation has continued too long at the expense of the courts and taxpayers. The fines I urge will at least partially repay the government for the time and expense involved in hearing cases growing out of a family argument."

The Superior Court, to which the three appealed, upheld the decision of the lower court in the Cancelliere cases, while Berardino's has not as yet been acted on.

The Cancelliere brothers were convicted of assault and battery after Berardino charged that the pair beat him in the street near their home at 6751 Stanton avenue, where he had gone with a constable to serve a warrant charging larceny. The original charge grew out of the separation of Berardino from his wife, a sister of the pair held, and the moving of some household goods.

CRASH INVOLVED

Berardino, New Kensington businessman, was convicted of felonious assault when it was charged that his machine forced from the roadway one in which his wife and other members of the Cancelliere family were riding.

Judge Darr granted the district attorney's recommendation and changed the sentences in the cases of the Cancelliere brothers. The Berardino recommendation will be decided when the higher court rules on his appeal.

Dramatically, her voice choked with sobs, the young woman told the jury of her love for her husband, and her hope for a reconciliation; of a struggle for possession of a revolver she said she had taken into court to show to the judge.

Before that she sat tensely, nervously, behind her attorneys, Edward G. Coll and David Silverblatt, as testimony of persons in the office at the time of the shooting was brought out by the questions of the prosecutor, Assistant District Attorney Earl R. Adair.

She twisted her handkerchief, but was otherwise undemonstrative as she heard witness after witness tell the jury that she went into the court office, exchanged a few words with her husband, and then drew a little automatic from her pocketbook and fired at him.

SOBS ON STAND

But once on the stand, her control deserted her, and she choked and sobbed as she told the jury:

"Stephen had a revolver and he threatened to shoot me. When he left he took his gun with him, and I bought the other gun. I wanted to show it to the judge so that if Stephen did not return home with me, the judge would make him support me.

"I told Stephen what I was going to do and he wanted to see the gun. I showed it to him. He grabbed it; I held on to it, and it was discharged.

"I didn't want to kill him. I loved him; I wanted him to come home with me."

Shelter from severe winter weather will be assured for the Lawrence Hamill family, including his wife, the 72-year-old mother of Mrs. Hamill and three Hamill children, if the owner of their home in South Eighteenth street will accept a welfare association offer to pay rent and not sell the furniture at constable sale.

A welfare association today is attempting to have Mrs. Bessie Schwartz, of Ambridge, the owner, leave the family in the home with the assurance it will pay the rent beginning December 1.

Another South Side landlord, Mrs. Emma Dessell, 39, of Freyberg street, was facing a hearing today before Alderman John P. Kearcher on a charge of malicious mischief because she had set out the furniture of her tenant, Mrs. Margaret Wilt, 23, of 118 South Twelfth street yesterday.

Two Women Injured In Attack by Cat

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Nov. 26.—(AP.)—Two women are under observation here for symptoms of rabies following a battle with a large Persian cat. One of the women killed the cat to loosen its teeth from the other's ankle.

Mrs. Anna Kenger was sitting before her fireplace when she suddenly was attacked by the pet, which had been curled on the hearth. Her screams attracted her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Riley, who was forced to strangle the animal.

Blue Laws Give Way To Needy Aid Shows

BALTIMORE, Nov. 26.—(AP.)—Maryland blue laws which for years have defeated all efforts to open motion picture houses on Sunday will be abrogated for at least one day for charity. On Sunday, December 14, all moving picture houses of the city will be opened and the proceeds given to aid of the unemployed, it was announced today.

PASSION PLAY CAST SUED

OBERAMMERGAU, Germany, Nov. 26.—(AP.)—Labor squabbles involving leading characters in the Oberammergau Passion Play have been carried into the courts against Anton Lang, the "Christus" of many productions; Allois Lang, who played the part this year, and nearly 100 others.

Anton Lang, sued for overtime wages by a pottery worker, has answered that his wage scale was so high as to make overtime payments unnecessary. The courts threw out a suit for wages against Allois Lang.

The other actions involve claims of household servants who charge they did not receive their share of tips automatically added to the bills of the town's guests during the Passion Play season.

BROKER SLAIN IN HOLDUP

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—(INS.)—Five masked bandits invaded the fashionable Lake Avenue Tavern early today and during the course of their robbery shot and killed Edwin Russell Thompson, prominent broker and son of Charles E. Thompson, multi-millionaire traction magnate.

Young Thompson, a leader in society circles here, was slow to obey the commands of the gang and laughed when the leader ordered him to turn around.

Enraged, the gunman fired a sawed-off shotgun point blank at Thompson's chest and he dropped dead. Paying no further attention to the prostrate broker, the gang remained for 10 minutes, forcing Frank Engel, the proprietor, to open the safe, which yielded only $125. Several patrons were relieved of their valuables.

Thompson, whose wife is at Evanston Hospital awaiting the birth of their first child, had gone to the Tavern to while away a nervous hour or two in a chat with the proprietor, a friend of his. Mrs. Thompson was not told of the tragedy.

SNOW CRIPPLES TRAFFIC IN DISTRICT

highways of the state were dangerous because of numerous slippery places and flying snow, they are not impassable. Cinders have been spread over all dangerous places and traffic is unhampered.

SNOW IN 19 COUNTIES

The Pennsylvania State Highway reported snow fell in 19 Western Pennsylvania counties. A maintenance force of 112 trucks and 195 men cleared the highways and scattered cinders on dangerous hills and intersections.

Five inches of snow was reported in Erie and Crawford Counties. The lowest temperature was 12 degrees, in Cambria County. The snowfall was general from New York state line to the West Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania boundary. Freezing temperatures prevailed in all counties in which snow fell.

At the state highway district garage in the Beaver Valley it was said that snow on most of the roads in that district, including routes 51, 30 and 68, has begun to thaw, and that hills on which there was danger from skidding, had been cindered.

The Christy Park district garage of the department, which takes care of the Long Run, the Perry highway, the Butler plank, the Lincoln, William Penn and Library roads, reported that while the snowfall was about two and a half inches, little danger exists.

AID FOR NEEDY

The Salvation Army, Helping Hand, Pittsburgh Association for the Improvement of the Poor, and the Police Relief Fund, among others, were preparing for immediate action today to lessen the sting of winter to the needy.

The Salvation Army will feed 1,500 tomorrow. The Helping Hand announced all would be fed who applied at its quarters in Water street.

Snowfall over Western Pennsylvania averaged between two and three inches, according to reports reaching Forecaster W. S. Brotzman. In many places the snow fell on ice, resulting from light rain the previous day, making going treacherous on the highways. Absence of wind kept drifting down to a minimum, Brotzman said.

Seventy-five employes of the Bureau of Highways and Sewers were scattering cinders on dangerous crossings and hills.

For the first time this season boys and girls brought out their sleds for coasting.

ICE ON LINCOLN HIGHWAY

The Automobile Club of Pittsburgh reported the Lincoln Highway east is open, but in bad condition with the ice from one to two inches thick.

The William Penn highway was reported better due to cindering by the state highway department yesterday. Fayette county roads are open but very icy.

The low temperature for the last 24 hours was 23 degrees between 9 and 11 o'clock last night. Little change in temperature is anticipated until tonight when the mercury may fall to beween 10 and 15 degrees the low mark of the season. Sub-zero temperatures were reported from many midwest stations today.

A white, frigid Thanksgiving is assured. Forecaster Brotzman said. Little relief is seen before Friday

"I hope by this trial and my admissions to nullify my counter-revolutionary activities."

His co-defendants sat near him, smoking cigarets and reading magazines. They appeared unmoved at the virtual certainty of an eventual death sentence.

NAMES LAWRENCE

Contact with British agents in Moscow, Ramzin declared, was established through "Col. Lawrence," newspaper men assuming his reference to be to "Lawrence of Arabia," now Aircraftsman Shaw, of the British Royal Flying Corps. Another British representative, Sir Philip Vicars, he said, once told him that "Lord Churchill" was the leading figure back of the intervention movement in England. It was assumed that he referred to Winston Churchill, former conservative chancellor of the exechequer, since the first Viscount Churchill is 72 years old and has not been active in British politics for some time.

MET "GENERAL"

Ramzin told of meeting a Gen. Janville, of the French general staff, in Paris, and, in company with a former Czarist general, Lukomsky, of discussing with him plans for intervention in Soviet Russia. They agreed that a force of 600,000 or 700,000 men, to be furnished principally by Rumania, Poland and Jugoslavia, with aid from white Russian sources, would be sufficient for their purpose, once the plotters had been able to pave the way inside the Soviet union.

The defendant, surrounded by a battery of sputtering white lights and movie cameras, never faltered in his self-condemning accusation of the foreign statesmen. He reiterated today information given in his two hours and a half on the stand yesterday that the summer of 1930 was the time set for the intervention plot.

Victor Alexis Lariachev, Russian engineer and second in command of the Industrial party, succeeded Razmin on the witness stand. He was nervous and immediately expressed repentance.

The session of the court will continue tonight with Lariachev still outlining his confession, which is much like that of Ramzin.

Delegates Return After Winning Indorsement of Lake Erie Project in West

Pittsburgh proponents of the Lake Erie and Ohio River canal, who returned from St. Louis this morning, moved in a campaign to arouse local interest in the $100,000,000 project, and carry it to completion.

James Rae, president of Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, leader of the delegation which secured indorsement of the project by the Mississippi Valley Association in St. Louis, today sent out a call for a general meeting on the canal to be held in the chamber next Tuesday noon.

At that time the delegation augmented by other interested parties will meet to discuss plans for their appearance before the Rivers and Harbors Congress which meets in Washington December 9-10.

REPORT AWAITED

President Rae and Thomas C. Foley, acting manager of the Pittsburgh chamber, were to confer this afternoon to discuss plans of an active campaign on the project between now and next January, when the report of the army engineers on the feasibility of the canal will be presented to the United States Congress.

Belief of the 900 delegates from 25 states attending the St. Louis convention that construction at this time would alleviate the unemployment situation, was an influencing factor in behalf of the canal. It is estimated that 30,000 men could be used in the work which could be under way early in 1931, provided Congress at its session next month provides emergency appropriations to enable work to be started at once.

Speakers at the final day's sessions were W. K. Kavanaugh, of St. Louis, who presented a report of the resolutions committee; A. B. Shepherd and Charles A. Orchard, of Pittsburgh, and Frank Purnell, of Youngstown.

The report of the resolutions committee was interpreted as advising the government against piecemeal construction, the type which raised the Ohio canalization from the estimated $63,000,000 to $125,000,000. The government was urged to speed up work on inland waterways and to release for immediate expenditure the $100,000,000 appropriated for a five-year period on valley projects.

Sinclair Lewis Asserts Poets Rank Industrialists

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(AP.)—To Sinclair Lewis fashioning poetry is just as serious business as manufacturing washing machines. He ventures to think that fiction, which tries to give the soul of man poetry and music may be as important as being a football coach.

The winner of the 1930 Nobel prize for literature gave his views to the great unseen radio audience and the P. E. N. Club last night. He said:

"The manufacturer of carburetors is taken far more seriously than the maker of poetry. And this is due, in no small measure, to the poet himself. What poet is so brave that he would stand before a great carburetor manufacturer and declare himself his equal.

"The fault is not only with the public, but with the authors. We must take our work, that of our colleagues and our enemies, seriously. Unless we do that we will have no place in the world."

Clara Bow's Ex-Secretary Indicted on 37 Counts

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 26.—(AP.)—Daisy Devoe, whose work as a hair dresser two years ago so pleased Clara Bow that the flaming-haired screen actress employed her as confidential secretary, was at liberty today under a $1,000 bond, charged by the grand jury on 37 counts of grand theft from her former employer.

Investigation, which resulted in the inrictment late yesterday, was begun two weeks ago, shortly after Miss Bow returned from New York and discharged Miss Devoe, alleging she discovered shortages in her accounts.

The indictment charged Miss Devoe, who had access to the actress' bank account, issued unauthorized checks totaling $16,000. Both Miss Bow and Mi[illegible] were witnesses before t[illegible] jury.

Shortly after she was in[illegible] Miss Devoe said through her [illegible] torney she would be able to refu[illegible] all charges in court. The time o[illegible] arraignment was not fixed.

COURT ASKED TO APPOINT GUARDIAN FOR MRS. HIBBERT

SUIT TRAILS WASSON CASE

Plea to Hold Incompetent Mother of Woman Whose Estate Ex-Judge Handled

Another act of the legal drama which resulted in the disbarment of former Judge Henry G. Wasson is being enacted in the Common Pleas Courts of Westmoreland County.

Two sisters and a brother of Mrs. Eleanor H. Davidson, whose $3,000,000 estate brought Former Judge Wasson to grief, have filed a petition asking that their mother, Mrs. Catherine Hibbert, 81, be declared weak-minded and a guardian appointed for her.

They are Mrs. Josephine L. Nute, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who filed the petition, Lawrence Hibbert, of Latrobe, and Mrs. Jane Landfair, of Black Lick, Indiana county. They are represented by Former Congressman James M. Magee.

ACTION OPPOSED

Opposing the action are two other daughters, Blanche M. and Martha K. Hibbert, represented by Attorney Glenn Machesny, of Greensburg, and W. Clyde Grubbs, of Pittsburgh, who represented the sisters in the disbarment action against Wasson and Attorney George H. Calvert.

At the hearing Mrs. Nute testified she had instituted the proceedings because of a spiritual visitation which urged her to help her mother.

After taking of testimony Monday, Judge Charles D. Copeland, who is hearing the case, appointed Dr. E. E. Mayer, of Pittsburgh, noted alienist, and Dr. Thomas P. Cole, of Greensburg, to examine Mrs. Hibbert and report to the court.

Mrs. Hibbert receives an income of $5,500 a month from the estate of her daughter, who several years ago was adjudged mentally incompetent to handle her affairs.

WASSON DISBARRED

Former Judge Wasson stands disbarred today in every court in the commonwealth as the result of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court's action yesterday in revising an order handed down Monday accepting his resignation.

The original order was interpreted by legal minds generally to mean that Attorney Wasson had merely resigned from the Supreme Court, but could continue his practice in lower courts of any county in which he had previously been admitted to the bar.

Yesterday, without comment, the Supreme Court recalled its order of the day before, and revised it to read as follows:

"And now, November 24, 1930, in accordance with the above stipulation, the exceptions filed are dismissed and the report of the Board of Governance affirmed.

"It is ordered that the name of Henry G. Wasson be and the same is stricken from the roll of attorneys of this court, and it is further ordered that his appeal, No. 319, January term, 1930, Eastern District, be and the same is hereby dismissed."

Both orders were handed down per curiam.

ROTHENBERG FACES SHIFT FROM 'HILL'

Magistrate Leo Rothenberg is to be relieved of presiding at hearings in Center Avenue Police Court and his activities restricted to Central Station, January 1, according to close associates of Mayor Kline.

The Mayor is reported as dissatisfied with Rothenberg's disposition of numbers and liquor cases in the Hill district, particularly those affecting friends of Joseph Engelsberg, Republican chairman of the Third Ward and rival of Alderman John J. Verona for neighborhood political supremacy.

Engelsberg is described by the Mayor's intimates as waning in his loyalty to the city administration, while Verona, at one time at odds with the Mayor, is said again to be in the executive's good graces.

According to the reports, Magistrate J. J. O'Connor, who conducts hearings at Oakland Station, will be given jurisdiction also at Center Avenue, in Rothenberg's place.

CITY'S BUS FARE MAY BE CUT

Reports that the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company is considering the advisability of reducing the 25-cent fare rate charged on buses were neither denied nor confirmed by Thomas Fitzgerald, president of the Pittsburgh Railways Company.

The policy of operation followed by the motor coach company has been attacked by the Allied Boards of Trade before the Public Service Commission. The latter has been asked to decide whether it is right or wrong. If the commission decides it is wrong, the company must then prove that the 25-cent fare is reasonable.

When asked if the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company is anticipating making any change in its rate policies, Fitzgerald said:

"Our research department is studying at all times the rate structure of the entire transportation system.

"It is considering various rates both up and down, in trying to arrive at some method of fare that will permit of the increase in quantity and quality of the local transportation service."

DELAY FILLING DAVIS POST

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26. — (INS.)—Demands of organized labor that President Hoover appoint a successor to Secretary of Labor James J. Davis only from within the ranks of the American Federation of Labor probably mean that that cabinet portfolio will not be filled until the first of the year, it was indicated today.

Although this open move of the A. F. of L. on the eve of Davis' retirement to take his seat in the Senate placed John P. Frey, secretary-treasurer of the Metal Trades Union, in a commanding position for the post, it has not precluded his appointment.

White House aides admit that organized labor has tremendous weight in the Senate, where all cabinet nominations must be confirmed. At the same time, they point out that the action of William Green, president of the A. F. of L. in publicly turning thumbs down on all candidates who do not hold a union card has placed President Hoover in "a delicate position."

Mr. Hoover's personal choice to head the Labor Department always has been William N. Doak, of Virginia, legislative representative of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

'RIDE' SHOOTING CASE FAILS

When Robert Klepner, of Oakmont, failed to substintiate his charge of felonious shooting, Joseph Getty, of 231 Oakland avenue, was discharged last night before Justice of the Peace W. E. Bair, of Oakmont.

Klepner, who charged that he was "taken for a ride" by Getty following a "numbers" row, told conflicting stories and was reprimanded by Bair. From the testimony it was learned that Getty and Klepner has agreed to settle an argument with a fist fight. Klepner, when questioned by the justice of the peace, refused to testify that Getty had fired a revolver.

Getty's alleged "numbers" lottery in Oakland avenue was raided yesterday by county detectives, and Getty, charged with maintaining a lottery, will be arraigned before Alderman George J. Anderson this afternoon.

Store to Give Check For City's Jobless

Mrs. Enoch Rauh, director of the department of welfare, was to receive a committee representing McCreery & Co., a check representing three per cent of the gross sales Friday and Saturday of last week, to be used in welfare work among the needy in Pittsburgh. A committee composed of Mrs. R. W. Johnson, Mrs. Francis DeLacey Hyde, James Rae and Arthur C. Kaufmann, was to meet with Mrs. Rauh this afternoon to decide on the manner in which the money will be distributed.

Coolidge Opposes Plan To Put 'Teeth' in Treaties

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Nov. 26.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Europe is always so much interested in having some agreement whereby the United States will undertake to assume Europe's burdens that any rumor to that effect is widely circulated and credited. The proposal for a consultative pact to supplement the peace and naval limitation treaties is again receiving foreign attention. We supposed it was made clear at the London Conference that this government was not inclined to make such a commitment. Our people do not have the imperialist mind. We have no desire to interfere in European affairs. Certainly it would be difficult to secure an agreement from us to become involved in their disputes. Our citizens go there only from a sense of duty to help when they are invited. Our government does not do that.

Calvin Coolidge

The world peace treaty is self enforcing. To agree to go to war under it would be to nullify it. Europe has the League of Nations which it can always consult in case of danger. Our ambassadors are at Geneva and at the other capitals. In case of danger we can join in any consultation that seems necessary to us when it arises. No agreement about it in advance is necessary or desirable.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

STATE WARNS EMPLOYERS

Employers in the Pittsburgh district are taking advantage of the present depression by working reduced staffs longer hours than are legally allowed, A. P. Huckestein, supervising inspector of the State Department of Labor and Industry, charged today. He warned employers that special efforts will be made to apprehend violators. He said:

"The labor laws must be enforced, regardless of business conditions. No person or agency has authority to waive any provisions of these acts of Assembly. Operating with a reduced personnel and throwing persons out of employment will never help business, will only make matters worse."

All inspectors in Western Pennsylvania will concentrate their attention upon establishments employing women and children, by Huckestein's latest order. Hours and conditions of labor will be checked and violators prosecuted. The inspector requests all employers of women and children, in doubt as to provisions of the law, to check with his office in the Fulton Building.

READY TO BUILD BIG APARTMENT

Sub-bids are ready to be let on a proposed million dollar 107-family apartment house project in North Negley avenue, near Penn avenue, Domonick Navarro, owner and builder, announced today. The building will contain nine floors.

Theodore Eichholz, architect, has already completed plans.

The entire construction will be of Italian design throughout, including interior appointments and fixtures. The Italian effect will be emphasized by a patio or court inside the building.

The building will set 60 feet back from North Negley avenue, allowing for a wide expanse of lawn.

All excavating has been finished. Navarro is anxious to begin operations as quickly as possible.

Nevada Governor's Daughter Bride

RENO, Nev., Nov. 26.—(AP.)—Campus rumors have brought forth announcement of the marriage in August, 1929, of Miss Phyllis Balzar, daughter of Gov. and Mrs. Fred B. Balzar, and George Vargas, Reno, both University of Nevada students.

They were married, he said, in British Columbia.

Mrs. Vargas, only child of Gov. and Mrs. Balzar, is a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority at the university. Vargas is a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

'2-GUN' SEXTET ROBS 34 IN POOLROOM

Bandits Force Victims to Disrobe, Get $1,500 Loot From Curtisville Crowd

County detectives and state police from the Butler barracks today are searching for six "two-gun" men who last night held up the poolroom of Trifon Kanvic at Curtisville, forcing 34 men to face a wall and disrobe. The thugs escaped with the pay of 33 victims, the amount being estimated at from $500 to $1,500. One intended victim saved his money by placing his bank roll, about $60, in his mouth.

Yesterday was payday at Mine No. 2 of the Ford Collieries at Curtisville and Kanvic's poolroom and bowling alleys were crowded when the bandits entered. The men were herded to one side and made to take off their trousers, coats, shoes and stockings, which three of the thugs searched, while their three other companions kept the crowd at bay.

PAIR HELD UP

Confronted by two armed highwaymen as he and his wife left their automobile in the garage in the rear of their home, William Ingroff, of 106 Richland lane, Squirrel Hill, was robbed of $180 in cash and a $700 diamond tie pin, he reported to police early today.

Two men robbed Ludwig Kosawski, of 1132 Reedsdale street, of his watch and $13 in cash this morning while he was walking in Penn avenue at Twenty-ninth street.

A premonition that she was going to be robbed prompted Mrs. Maxwell D. Pearce, of 260 Gross street, to take two rings worth $10,000 to a safe deposit vault yesterday. Mrs. Pearce was walking to her home after putting her car in the garage a half block away from her home last night when two thugs confronted her. They fled without loot when Mrs. Pearce screamed. Today she was reported under a doctor's care.

Believing the armed thug who entered the Dimling candy shop, 204 Stanwix street, a jokester, Miss Cecelia Miller, of 2025 Lucina avenue, Carrick, the clerk, smiled when ordered to hand over the money in the register, but when he thrust the revolver into her face she scooped up $30 and handed it to the robber.

DRUG STORE LOOTED

George M. Gillen, manager of Fuhrer's Drug Store, at 3701 Butler street, was held at bay by two bandits who entered the store last night and looted the cash register of $30.

Stopped by two armed Negroes at Federal street and River avenue, Walter Smith, of 426 Fifth avenue, reported to police he had been robbed of $7.60 in cash by them.

Clothing value at $160 was stolen from the home of Miss Sarah Meretzsky, of 815 Cassett street, during the night, according to the report to detectives.

Japan Makes Old Stockings Into New Silk

SAN PEDRO, Cal., Nov. 26—(AP.)—Any mystery there might have been as to what happens to old silk stockings was cleared today at Los Angeles harbor after an inquiring reporter had watched the Japanese motor liner Tatsuta Maru take on her cargo.

Five tons of old stockings in bales was taken into the hold. In Japan the stockings will be unravelled, wound on bobbins and remanufactured into other wearing apparel.

CHEAP WAGES STIR M'GOVERN

County Commissioner C. C. McGovern today denounced the alleged practice of some contractors in paying laborers 25 to 35 cents an hour.

He said:

"The time has come when the County Commissioners should see to it that laborers on county contracts get a decent, living wage, instead of 25, 30 and 35 cents an hour.

"I know of a contractor who has a job requiring 12 laborers and in four weeks he has hired 120 men. He works each one three or four days until he is exhausted, then engages new men. That is treating men like animals."

The discussion came up in a meeting of the Commissioners to authorize the final payment on the Sawmill Run boulevard, amounting to $46,335.52. The total cost of the project was $832,876.35.

Public Works Director Norman P. Brown said half a dozen roads were being built now for the county by contractors. He said he believed the laborers were receiving 50 cents an hour. The Commissioners asked that an investigation be made to determine what legal powers the Commissioners have to compel contractors on county work to pay a fair wage.

Bandits Holdup Man, Escape With $100

Two armed men held up H. B. Boldt, of Orphan street, in Larimer avenue, near Shetland avenue, early this morning and robbed him of $100 in cash, according to his report to police. Boldt was on his way home and was only two squares away when the men halted him and went through his pockets. Police are working on the case.

JACOB HENRICI, WRITER, DIES

Jacob Henrici, 88, bookshop proprietor, magazine and newspaper writer and once an office boy of Andrew Carnegie, died today at the home of a son, Frederick W. Henrici, 1114 Portland street, East End.

Born in Pittsburgh July 4, 1850, he was a namesake and nephew of the head of the Harmony Society, a religious community at Economy, now Ambridge.

Six weeks ago a stroke confined him to a sick bed for the first time in his 80 years.

Mr. Henrici attended the Pittsburgh high school, afterwards learning telegraphy. Once he was assigned for a week to assist Thomas A. Edison in an electrical experiment.

He was a member of a number of scientific societies and the First Unitarian Church of Pittsburgh. Viola Irons Henrici, his wife, died in February, 1929.

He leaves three sons, Max Henrici, of the Sun-Telegraph editorial staff; F. W. and Dr. Arthur T. Henrici, of the faculty of the University of Minnesota, and seven grandchildren.

Delay of Bus Costs Man on Trial $250

His tardiness on the second day of his trial in Federal Court here, will cost Joseph A. Rose, of Wheeling, just $250, he was told by Judge R. M. Gibson. Rose was placed on trial yesterday with William McManus, also of Wheeling, charged with transporting a stolen automobile.

He told the court the bus in which he was riding from Wheeling broke down. The judge said that was no excuse.

Car of 'Terra Cotta' Proves to Be Beer

Prohibition agents reported seizing a carload of beer, consigned as terra cotta products, in the Glenwood yards of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, last night. The shipment was consigned from the Middlesex Terra Cotta Company to the Pennsylvania Terra Cotta Company. Both names are believed fictitious.

THANKSGIVING TO BE MARKED IN CHURCHES

Many Congregations Meet For Annual Observances; Union Gatherings Arranged

Special services will mark the observances of Thanksgiving in the churches of Pittsburgh and vicinity tomorrow. In many communities or districts the various denominations will join for union services in the morning, with topics appropriate to the occasion.

Community Thanksgiving services for the Oakland and Bellefield districts will be held at 10:30 o'clock in the First United Presbyterian Church, Fifth avenue and Thackeray street. The Rev. Dr. Robert MacGowan, of the Bellefield Presbyterian Church will speak. Special music will be featured.

Services will be held at 10:30 a. m. in the North Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, North avenue and Arch street. The Rev. W. Sproule Boyd will preach on "The Challenge of Thanksgiving Day, 1930."

KDKA BROADCASTS SERVICE

The Rev. G. W. F. Doege, of the Second St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Pride street, will conduct services at 9:30 a. m. in German. At 10:30 a. m. he will speak at the English service on "A Good Christian Will Thank God Not Only With His Lips, But Also With His Life."

The Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly, will conduct a special service at 10:30 a. m. in the Shadyside Presbyterian Church. The services will be broadcast over Station KDKA.

The Rev. Dr. A. Gordon MacLennan will speak on "Privilege and Responsibility" at the community Thanksgiving service of the Shadyside Ministerial Association in Mt. Zion Lutheran Church tomorrow.

The churches of Emsworth will hold a union Thanksgiving service in the Emsworth Lutheran Church. The Rev. W. C. Mason will preach.

BELLEVUE CHURCHES UNITE

The subject of the lesson sermon in all Christian Science churches in greater Pittsburgh tomorrow will be "Thanksgiving."

Dr. R. M. Karr, of the Pittsburgh Theological Seminary, will deliver the Thanksgiving address at the Fourth United Presbyterian Church, North Side, the Rev. C. D. Morrow, pastor, at 10:30 a. m.

Bellevue congregations will join in a union service at 10 a. m. in the Bellevue Presbyterian Church, North Fremont street. The Rev. Dr. John B. Magee, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, will preach the sermon.

Several churches of the South Hills district will hold a union service in the Orchard Street Baptist Church at 10 o'clock. The Rev. Dr. Frederick Kempster, of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, will preach the sermon.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Edna Brandon Wood; a daughter, Mrs. S. N. McClymonds, of Wheeling, W. Va.; three sisters, Mrs. William Thomas, of Cleveland, Mrs. J. H. McLivenney, Mrs. John Mottinger and a brother, W. H. Wood, of New Castle. Services will be held tomorrow night in the Beinhauer mortuary, West Liberty avenue, and Friday afternoon in the home of his brother, W. H. Wood, 109 Fairfield avenue, New Castle.

Mrs. Lillian W. Lake.

Funeral services for Mrs. Lillian W. Lake, 55, for nearly two decades a Pittsburgh newspaperwoman, are being held this afternoon with burial in Chartiers Cemetery. Mrs. Lake died Sunday in her home, Cumberland and Steuben streets, Crafton Heights. Born in Smyrna, Del., Mrs. Lake came to Pittsburgh 36 years ago and became society editor of the Pittsburgh Press. She was a member of the Congress of Women's Clubs. She leaves two sons, Alvin E., of New Castle, Ind., and Harold S. Lake, of Miami, Fla.; three daughters, Mrs. Bradley M. Lea, of Ingram, and Mrs. Joseph Christ, of Pittsburgh, and Miss Virginia Stuart Lake, missionary in Singapore, Malay Peninsula, and two brothers, Stuart Wilds, of Ingram, and Scott Wilds, of California.

John F. Blazier.

Funeral services for John F. Blazier, 64, who died Monday, will be held tonight in his home, 313 Russellwood avenue, McKees Rocks, in charge of the Rev. Edward Wilson, of Trinity Cathedral. He was a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and of North Temple Commandery, No. 657, Knights of Malta. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Blazier; a son, Charles H., of Cleveland; a daughter, Miss Ruth, at home; a sister, a brother and three grandchildren.

Mrs. Mary N. Booth.

Funeral services were held this afternoon for Mrs. Mary Nevin Booth, widow of John B. Booth, in her home, 321 Grant street, Sewickley. She died Monday. She was a lifelong resident of the Sewickley Valley. She was a member of the Presbyterian Church and the Woman's Club. She leaves a daughter Miss Marguerite Booth; two son, William and Thomas M. Booth, of Sewickley, and a brother, Franklin T. Booth, of Philadelphia.

Frey Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Neuhauser Frey, 72, who died Monday, will be held at the home, on Hunter road, R. F. D. No. 1, Verona, at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow. PAN-AMERICAN NATIONS FIGHT DRUG EVIL

Health Officers of Many Nations to Attack Drug Traffic at Conference

By EDWARD L. BODDAN,
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—The first united attack by the Pan-American nations to end the nefarious drug traffic on the western hemisphere was in prospect today.

The problem of narcotics control, it was learned, will be given a prominent place on the agenda of the second Pan-American Conference of Directors of Health which convenes here next April.

This meeting will bring together the health officers of all the American nations, including officials of the United States Public Health Service.

Meeting here under the auspices of the Pan-American Union and the Pan-American Sanitary Bureau, the delegates will be confronted with the task of promoting and protecting the health and well being of the millions of inhabitants of North, Central and South America.

Although the nations on this side of the Atlantic have long led the world in attacking the drug problem, never before has this evil been made the subject of an official Pan-American conference clothed with the necessary authority to deal with it effectively. Such a conference has long been advocated by the Hearst newspapers.

The tentative agenda provides for the drafting of a model narcotics code which, if approved by the conference, will be recommended to the ninth Pan-American Sanitary Conference and to the respective nations for adoption.

The conference will be asked to go further and adopt a resolution calling upon those European nations which manufacture such drugs on a large scale to "clean house" and prevent the steady flow of drugs into illegitimate channels. Until raw materials and manufactures are restricted, it is generally agreed that the American countries will be at the mercy of these producing nations.

Johnstown Flood Relics Prized by N. S. Woman

Newspapers and a book of clippings which floated two days in the waters of the Johnstown Flood in 1889 are cherished relics today of Mrs. Katherine Richards Holmes, of 2047 Chateau street, North Side. A descendant of the early Richards family of settlers for whom the town of Richardsville, Armstrong County, was named, Mrs. Holmes' collection of papers include many subscribed to by her early relatives. Among the oldest papers is The Columbian, published in Kittanning and dated November 24, 1824. Throughout the columns are mentioned family names of many of today's Pittsburghers, including Judge Elder Marshall.

Traffic Club Group Leaders Selected

Traffic Club of Pittsburgh standing committees for the current organization were announced today by President A. L. Doggett.

Heading the annual dinner committee will be Benjamin S. Thomas, with J. W. Brady, vice chairman. Other committee heads are: Provident, Norman Allderdice; auditing, F. M. Ewing; speakers, J. H. Carroll; membership, W. R. Cox; historical, J. T. Nelson; finance, John I. Mulvey, and publicity, F. A. Layman.

MANY FAIL CAR DRIVING TEST

Of 35,718 applicants who took examinations for automobile driver's licenses given by members of the Pennsylvania Motor Patrol at the Pittsburgh station on Washington boulevard during the first 10 months of 1930, 11,521, or 32.2 per cent were refused operator's cards, according to a report made public by the Pittsburgh Motor Club today. July was the peak month for examinations, with 5,589 applying and 3,644 passing the tests. January was the lowest, with 1,769 applying and 1,278 receiving licenses. Applications in October dropped to 3,334 with 2,249 successful with their examinations. A late report from the Bureau of Motor Vehicles shows that slightly more than 2,100,000 operators are now licensed in Pennsylvania.

Grid Squad Guests At Nurses' Dance

A dinner-dance will be held tonight by the senior class of the Mercy Hospital School of Nursing in the nurses home, with members of St. Vincent College football squad the honor guests. Miss Mary Adams, general chairman, announced that Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Predette will lead the grand march.

HARTMAN, HIGH MASON, DIES

Frank Drux Hartman, 73, of 5540 Wilkins avenue, representative of the United States Fidelity and Guarantee Company, died yesterday at the home of a daughter in Tulsa, Okla., where he had gone following an illness of two months.

Mr. Hartman

He was born in Pittsburgh December 3, 1857. He was a thirty-third degree Mason and past master of Temple Lodge, No. 678, and a former member and past master of St. John's Lodge, No. 219, F. & A. M.; Shiloh Chapter, No. 257, R. A. M.; Tancred Commandery, No. 48, Knights Templar; Ancient Accepted Scottish Rite, Valley of Pittsburgh, of which he was once thrice potent master, and Syria Temple, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. He was made a thirty-third degree Mason in 1917.

He leaves his widow, two sons, Charles M., of Melbourne, Australia, and Frank D. Hartman, Jr., of Erie, and three daughters, Mrs. A. J. McEwan, of Tulsa; Mrs. George H. Neudorfer, of Franklin, and Mrs. J. H. Satterwhite, of Seattle.

Doll Lady All Prepared For Busy Christmas Rush

Dear Little Girls:

And now comes Thanksgiving. With this happy holiday out of the way, you'll have time to give more thought to Christmas. "Tickletoes" is really a Christmas joy and with tomorrow's holiday gone, the little girls will begin to think more about what they want for the day when Santa Claus is king.

I knew that hundreds of little girls would want a "Tickletoes" and I foresaw that the day's immediately ahead of Christmas would find me dreadfully rushed, so I decided to begin my work early and take care of as many little girls as possible before the real rush begins.

Now is really the time to get your adorable "Tickletoes." If you could only see the happiness expressed on the faces of the many little girls who have already done what I asked them to do and have been given their big, lovable dollies, you would really share in their joy as I do. Nearly 100 little girls trooped out of my headquarters yesterday, each tenderly and tightly holding their new playmate.

Here are the names of some of the little girls that sent me letters yesterday: Mary Handravy, Nedra Arthur, Julia Honyak, Mary Hyde, Marian McGwern, Mary Cunningham, Ann Bird, Nancy Hayes, Mae Watson, Eleanor Davidson, Dolores Jones, Anna Karpa, Celia Nahmod, Gloria Stern and Katie Bryant.

As I have told you before, I am not asking little girls to do very much to get this big laughing-eyed "Tickletoes." In fact, any little girl can easily get one with the help of her mother, her daddy or her neighbors. Fill in the coupon and send it to me and I'll tell you by return mail just how you can get this wonder doll for your very own.

I hope you'll all have a happy Thanksgiving Day, the Thermo-fresh...

A BIG WORD
WITH A BIGGER MEANING

It insures 60% more coffee flavor for your breakfast cup

COFFEE flavor is a regular runaway . . . As soon as coffee is roasted, the flavor begins to escape . . . So rapidly does it evaporate that 60% vanishes within nine days, unless it is sealed up tightly in air-proof tins.*

White House Coffee is now insured against such flavor loss by the new Thermo-fresh tin. Into this tin it goes, fresh from the roaster, sealed up in its own fragrant aroma. And it stays freshly-roasted coffee until you unlock the tin . . . Every bit of the rare, mellow goodness of this famous blend is saved to give richer flavor to the wonderful drink you'll make from it.

So fix White House Thermo-fresh firmly in your mind. Remember to say it next time you buy coffee. When you've once used it, you'll always insist on White House . . . And even if you find this Thermo-fresh Coffee a bit more expensive than other coffees, buy it just the same . . . The extra satisfaction of coffee with 60% more flavor is well worth a few extra cents.

UNUSUAL SALES DAYS

FRIDAY and SATURDAY!

Open a Charge Account, on National Sales Days, Friday and Saturday.

Wake Up Pittsburgh! Take your chin off your vest! Look up and smile! You've a lot more to be thankful for than most cities. Your own Chamber of Commerce will tell you that... $6,000,000 will be distributed in the next day or two in Christmas Savings Funds!

And here's more good news! In addition to the Unusual Savings offered on Special Purchases, we are going to offer Men's Clothing, Women's Coats and Dresses and Children's Apparel from regular stock, at those Same Reductions that are Customary AFTER Christmas!

And remember—this will be a Practical Christmas, and if you want to be a Practical Santa Claus you will take advantage of these savings on Friday and Saturday, to fill TWO stockings at the usual cost of ONE!

Bring the Children Here on Friday—

No school Friday! So bring the kiddies and outfit them for their immediate needs, as well as for Christmas. And the teachers have a vacation too. They should also share in these extraordinary savings!

STARS OF OPERA, STAGE, PRESS AND 'MIKE' JOIN IN HOLIDAY PROGRAMS

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—In the decade since the harassed Harding occupied the White House the people of America have become more familiar not only with the workings of the government, but with the personalities behind the wheels than at any time since Jefferson retired to the sweeping panorama of Monticello.

And all because the grand dukes of the microphone have found in Washington one of the greatest sources of broadcast material.

Because of radio a nation is now familiar with the voices of the politically conspicuous if not with gossipy details of their lives. We have cupped our ears continuously to the seats of the mighty. Hoover himself has marched to the microphone more than 50 times since he assumed the presidency.

And if you think that Hoover has been unusually audible what have you to say of James J. Davis and Ray Lyman Wilbur and Dr. Julius Klein? These three constitute the foremost oratorical siege guns of any administration in the world.

Congress Set Record In Broadcasting

The Seventy-first Congress set a record for use of broadcasting in reaching the ears of the republic. Records of the radio men show that every important piece of legislation was discussed at length by members of the two houses of Congress. Through radio, the voices of more than one-third of the members of the Senate and more than 50 members of the House were heard throughout the country.

With the gradual evolution of broadcasting into what the boys call show business, the radio men are now in a huddle, devising ways and means of presenting Washington more as a spectacle than as a seat of government.

They made a good start in this direction when they seized upon the old-fashioned spelling bees and quoit-pitching contests. They succeeded in tickling the fancy of the multitudes tired of the ceaseless gabbing, wearied of the endless talks which strangely neglected the element of human interest.

Such enterprises are welcomed by this department. They aid materially in battering down old and outworn traditions. They help pave the way for the long-awaited moment—I wonder how far off it is, Senator Dill?—when microphones are set up in the Senate chamber to catch the fire and drama of debate.

* * *

If a senator who has hitherto held his dignity unassailable can pitch quoits for a nation to hear, he ought also to be willing to pitch his voice in the Senate aisles for a nation to hear.

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor

Louise Homer, Martha Attwood, Bernice Claire, Floyd Gibbons, Brox Sisters, Ring Lardner, John Charles Thomas are some of the celebrities in radio programs over the Thanksgiving holidays. Duets of "O Lovely Night" and Barcarolle from "Tales of Hoffman" by Louise Homer, contralto, and Anna Case, soprano, give brilliance to WCAE's schedule at 8 tonight. At 11:15 KDKA has the Penn State Band in its annual pre-Thanksgiving Day concert.

The broadcasters were exceptionally alert in securing good features this year. We could write for pages about these attractions, but would refer you rather to our pick in "Best Bets."

* * *

At 9 o'clock tomorrow night KDKA has a program featuring Rasbach's arrangement for Joyce Kilmer's beautiful poem, "Trees."

No matter what your taste there is something in this radio menu to satisfy your musical appetite.

Helen Corbin Heinl, pianist, who plays an Ormandy arrangement of Schubert's "Moment Musicale" on WCAE tomorrow night at 9:30, is the wife of our good pal, Robert D. Heinl, radio editor of the Washington, D. C., Post.

QUESTION A DAY:

Who is the new announcer at WENR?—T. T. O.

Answer — Two announcers have been added to the WENR staff recently. They are Garnet A. Marks, formerly of KMOX, and John Reed Tyson, formerly a literary reader on WGN.

"BY THE WAY—"

Charles Previn, leader of the Pleasure Hour Orchestra (KDKA at 9:30), has an intellectual friendship with James, Freud and Adler . . . and uses psychology in getting the most out of musicians. . . . His New York apartment, where he lives with his two brothers, is a gathering place for artists, composers, newspapermen and stage celebrities. . . . He likes detectives stories, chess and football. . . . Ernest Scott, blind man of 74 Union avenue, Bellevue, is preparing to play Santa Claus for Cousin Lora's WCAE family. . . . He imitates all kinds of birds and toys. . . . Does Cousin Lora have a following? . . . Last week we said she graduated from Wilkinsburg High, confusing her alma mater with that of Herb McGee, and in came the letters, 56 of them. . . . Lora is claimed by Perry High. . . . Bud Cooper's inaugural of the Scotland Yard series on KQV tomorrow night at 9:30 brings to the microphone several drama students of Carnegie Tech. . . . Betty Blythe, movie star, is the Radio Follies' drawing card on WJAS this Friday. . . . We hope you have a delightful Thanksgiving with lots of friends, good health and happiness!

Charles H. Joseph To 'Talk Turkey'

"Let's Talk Turkey" is the subject of a special Thanksgiving Day address to be made over Station KDKA at noon tomorrow by Charles H. Joseph, whose brilliant and spicy paragraphs appear every Sunday in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Mr. Joseph writes under the head, "Random Thoughts." Mr. Joseph's talk will be ushered in with a program of appropriate musical selections.

Elderly People Can't Risk COUGHS and COLDS

People who have passed the fifty mark realize that coughs and colds weaken the system and may easily lead to serious disease. They start taking Father John's Medicine at the first sneeze. They never dope a cold, because that merely leads to a false sense of security. They know that Father John's Medicine not only helps to break a cold right up, but that it is a simple food medicine that promotes health and strength. It contains vitamins that increase resistance to disease. If you have a cough or cold now, or if you catch cold easily, start with Father John's Medicine today. Take it regularly and colds will be few and far between. Just ask your druggist.

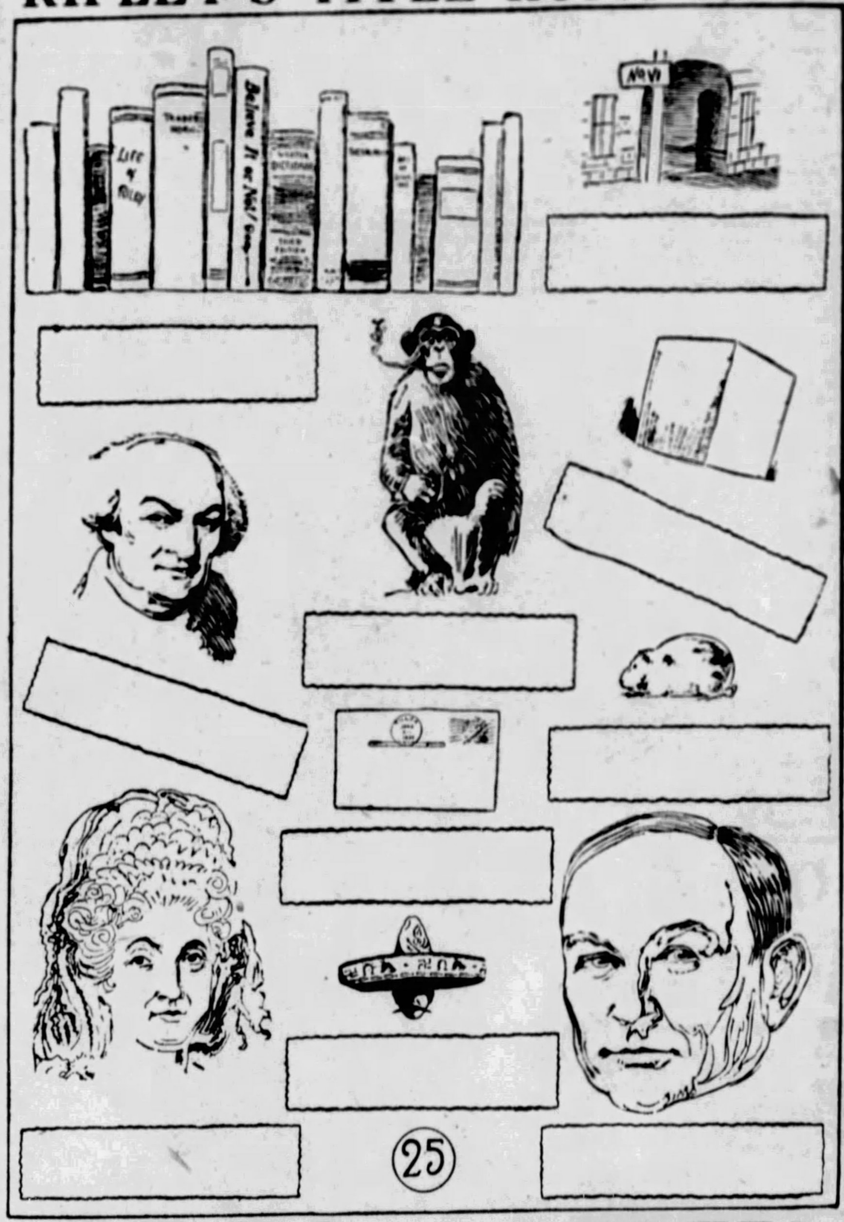
RIPLEY'S TITLE HUNT No. 2



$1500 in Cash Prizes FREE!

START now to win your share of this $1500 in prizes. Join in this fascinating New Title Hunt through the Classified Ads. Thirty sets of Ten Ripley pictures each will be published. The number of the above set appears in this cartoon—the first appeared November 2nd. If you have missed any of the series you can secure back copies of the Sun-Telegraph containing sets of Ripley pictures and titles. Simply address your request, specifying the dates and numbers of the sets you require, to the New Ripley Title Hunt Editor, care Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh. Enclose 10c for each copy of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph—3c for each copy of the daily Sun-Telegraph. Or you may proceed according to Rule 8. Make your start in the New Ripley Title Hunt TODAY.

FOLLOW THESE RULES

1—Every one is eligible to participate in the New "Title Hunt" except employes of the Sun-Telegraph and their families.
2—Every day from November 2nd to December 1st inclusive ten Ripley "Believe It or Not" pictures (without descriptions) will be published in addition to the regular Ripley page feature. The descriptions for each picture will be published in the Classified Ad Column.
3—The New Ripley "Title Hunt" consists in finding the ten Ripley pictures, clipping them out, and placing each under the picture to which it refers. The words making up the description will be published as a single unit in one place.
4—Hold all of the pictures until you have thirty complete sets of 10 each—300 pictures in all. Then send them in to the New Ripley "Title Hunt" Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Telegraph Square, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.
5—All entries must be postmarked not later than midnight, Thursday, December 11th. No entries will be returned to the sender.
6—Fifteen hundred dollars in cash prizes, in accordance with the complete prize list published herewith, will be paid to the persons sending in the most nearly correct and most neatly prepared set of pictures at the close of the New Ripley "Title Hunt."

230 Cash Awards

First Prize	$250.00
Second Prize	150.00	Fifth Prize	25.00
Third Prize	75.00	25 Prizes at $10	250.00
Fourth Prize	50.00	100 Prizes at $5	500.00
		100 Prizes at $2	200.00
TOTAL (230 Cash Prizes)			$1,500

7—A committee of judges will be appointed by the Sun-Telegraph to determine the successful contestants. All entrants agree to accept the decisions of these judges as final. In case of ties a duplicate award will be given each tying contestant.
8—It is not necessary to purchase the Sun-Telegraph to compete. The newspaper may be examined at the office or at the public libraries free of charge, and if you wish you may copy or trace the pictures from the Sun-Telegraph and then assemble the sets from the copies you have made.

Be Sure to Get All the Pictures

The demand for both the week day and Sunday editions of the Sun-Telegraph is bound to be immense and each day's supply quickly exhausted. To be sure you get the pictures and descriptions as they appear each day it is good judgment to place a regular order NOW.

Could Write a Book About It

"Nine years ago after my little girl was born dead, I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for about four months. The next year I became the mother of a fine 11 pound baby boy. After he was born, I kept on with the medicine to build me up. Four months ago I was nervous and rundown and suffered from other troubles which I knew Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would relieve so I started taking it and now I feel fine again. Many of my friends could write a book on the good the Vegetable Compound has done them."—Mrs. W. Overmann, 918 Regina Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

Thanksgiving Leave Given School Pupils

Pupils of public schools will have a week-end vacation beginning Thanksgiving, Dr. Ben F. Graham, superintendent of city schools, announced today. Parochial schools, off Thanksgiving, in some instances will have school Friday, while others will have the day free.

TRAFFIC ESSAY FUND GRANTED

An additional fund of $2,800 was approved by City Council yesterday for the Better Traffic Committee to use in its fourth annual traffic essay contest and for the purchase of equipment for school traffic safety patrols throughout Pittsburgh.

Frank L. Duggan, chairman of the traffic committee, reported that 70,724 essays had been written for the contest by pupils in 166 of the city's public and parochial schools. The 2,252 essays which survived a process of elimination in the schools are now being considered by the judges.

Herron Speaks On City Tax Problems

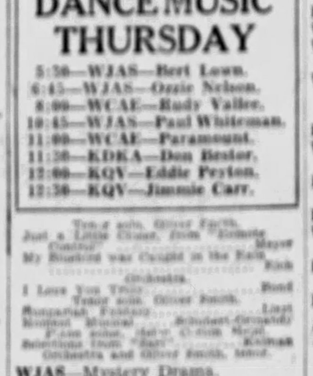
At the weekly luncheon yesterday of the Bayard-Atwood Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, in the Hotel Henry, the principal speaker was John S. Herron, president of City Council. He talked on "Pittsburgh and Its Tax Problems."

Council Committee O.K.'s Improvements

A number of improvement ordinances, sent to Council by Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang, were affirmed by the public works committee of Council yesterday. They included the widening of Carson street to provide ramps for the West End-North Side bridge, a sewer on Independence street, and agreements with the state for the improvement of Lebanon road and Perrysville avenue.

Phila. Telephone Head to Speak Here

Phillip C. Stables, of Philadelphia, vice president in charge of operations of the Bell Telephone Company in that city, will speak on "Forecasting and Programing Telephone Development" at a membership meeting of the Chamber of Commerce next Tuesday at noon. He is a director of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the Philadelphia Traffic Commission.



Pennsy Boy Amazes Mother

"Frank's stomach was often upset and he suffered a lot from colds," says Mrs. M. Zuschlag, 2248 So. 66th St., Philadelphia. "He was feverish and his breath was bad. I found he was constipated.

"My mother used California Fig Syrup with us, so I decided to give Frank some. It surely surprised me to see how quickly it stopped his feverishness, cleared his breath and tongue, regulated his bowels; made him a strong and energetic boy again."

The quick, safe way to cleanse and regulate the bowels of bilious, headachy, constipated children is with California Fig Syrup. Give it at the first sign of bad breath, coated tongue, listlessness or feverishness. Every child loves its rich, fruity flavor and it acts without griping or discomfort. Appetite is increased by its use; digestion is assisted; weak stomach and bowels are given tone and strength.

For fifty years, doctors have endorsed this pure vegetable product. The genuine is always marked by the word California. Look for that when buying or you may get an imitation.

"We invade a new field with vastly improved cars at the lowest prices in our history"

BY WILLIAM J. McANEENY
President, Hudson Motor Car Company

WE have built these models up to and beyond the 1931 standards of performance and quality in every way, and have never in our history offered so many improvements. Quality is greater down to the last detail. Every phase of performance has been greatly improved, and the luxury we have built into the cars is substantially greater than ever before. Motors are larger and more powerful. An efficient system of oil cooling is introduced. A marked improvement in carburetion increases flexibility and economy. Bodies are longer and wider. These cars possess the finest, easiest riding qualities. For the first time, such comfort is available at these low prices. Only great manufacturing economies and the fact that our large resources permit us to take the fullest possible advantage of reduced commodity prices have enabled us to offer the public the greatest combination of quality and low prices in our entire history.

Owner-Management Permits Exclusive Value Advantages

Owner-management enables Hudson-Essex to give you outstanding advantages in quality and price. The men who are now guiding its destinies have been with the company since its inception twenty-two years ago. Its department heads and principal distributors are its controlling owners. Their independence is backed by unusually large resources in capital and plant facilities. It enables Hudson-Essex to lead in design and engineering quality. It permits economies in manufacture and distribution that bring exceptional quality direct to the public at distinct price advantages.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Miss Curry Weds in Church

Rivaling the myriad snowflakes of winter are the varied social affairs of the season. Leading the procession of events today is a very lovely wedding in Calvary Episcopal Church at 5 o'clock.

Elizabeth Curry, daughter of Junior Henry M. Currys, of Beechwood boulevard, is the bride, and she is marrying John M. Kingsley, son of the Darwin P. Kingsleys, of Park avenue, New York. The Rev. Dr. Edwin J. Van Etten is the officiant. Ferns, crotons and southern smilax decorate the church and the chancel is blanked with white chrysanthemums.

Mary French, of Greenwich, the maid of honor, is wearing flame chiffon with a matching velvet hat and her bouquet is of Talisman roses. Peach chiffon frocks with matching hats of velvet are the costumes of the bridesmaids who include Lydia Irish and Helen Pendleton, buds of the past winter; Mary Ann West, of Providence; Elinor Durbin, of Chicago; Mrs. Ralph H. Boots, of New York, sister of the bridegroom, and Anna Karen Cooke, of Honolulu. Their flowers are Talisman roses.

Colorful Chiffons

Mrs. Curry is wearing blue velvet with a matching hat and Mrs. Kingsley has chosen brown lace with a brown velvet hat. Both are wearing shoulder corsages of orchids.

Darwin P. Kingsley, Jr., is his brother's best man, and the ushers include George H. Flinn, Jr., Alfred E. Bissell, of Wilmington; Gerald Ives, of New York; William K. Laughlin, of Providence; William Knight, of Toledo; Dr. Ralph H. Boots, of New York, and Kenneth Brownell, of Greenwich.

There is a reception in the Pittsburgh Golf Club after the ceremony. A very lovely note is being added to the wedding by a vested choir preceding the bridal procession down the aisle, and chanting the Lohengrin wedding march.

There's another wedding today that Pittsburgh folks are interested in, that of Jane Foster, daughter of the Charles A. Fosters, of San Mateo, Cal., formerly of Pittsburgh, and granddaughter of Mrs. Harvey Childs, Jr., and Edward Small Moore, Jr., of Big Horn, Wyo., son of the Edward Small Moores, of New York, and nephew of the T. A. McGinleys and Cyrus R. Millers, of Sewickley.

Wedding In West

The wedding is taking place this afternoon in St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, San Mateo, to be followed by a reception at the Foster home. The church is decorated with peach-colored chrysanthemums. And officiating is the Right Rev. Edward L. Parsons, Episcopal bishop of San Francisco.

A wedding gown of white satin, fashioned with a long court train, is being worn by the bride, with a veil of tulle and rose point lace. Her flowers are white orchids.

C. D. Barnes, Jr., of New York, is best man and John Watson, of San Francisco; Robert Hooker, of Hillsborough; Charles Alliston Foster, Jr., brother of the bride, and Oliver Wallop, of Big Horn, Wyo., brother-in-law of the bridegroom, are ushers.

Among the guests at the ceremony are the Edward Small Moores, of New York, parents of the bridegroom; Mrs. W. H. Moore, of New York, grandmother of the bridegroom, and James H. Childs, of Pittsburgh, Mrs. Foster's brother.

After an eastern honeymoon, the young Moores will be at home in Wyoming. The bride made her debut here several Yuletides ago.

MRS. GEORGE FIELD MacDONALD

CLUB NOTES

In her paper before the Woman's Auxiliary to the Allegheny County Medical Society yesterday, Mrs. David Ludwig spoke of the mother of Hippocrates as the first woman's auxiliary. Mrs. Ludwig traced the history of medicine from its beginning with Hippocrates through to the formation of the local auxiliary five years ago. Dr. J. A. Hagemann also spoke, taking as his subject material the pioneer physicians of Western Pennsylvania. A reception to the state president, Mrs. J. F. McCullough, and guests of the tenth councilor district of the auxiliary was another feature of the meeting which was held in the Keystone Club. Elsie Breese Mitchell and Mrs. B. Z. Cashman, both in costume, gave a program of old-fashioned songs. The aides were also costumed in period.

Spain, more than any other country, has preserved monuments which are truly indicative of the religious spirit of medieval times, Walter Reed Hovey, of the University of Pittsburgh, said in addressing the College Club's junior activities committee yesterday. At a later group meeting Mrs. Howard A. Wilson, chairman of the general readers, introduced Miss Helen R. Adams, of Meadville, specialist in early American literature. Tea followed this program.

Mrs. E. W. McCallister and her social committee are planning a bridge dinner for Monday at the clubhouse, and Mrs. H. H. Talbot, a member of the committee, is giving a bridge luncheon on Tuesday. The Friday afternoon program this week will be a musicale by Anna Laura Cree and Henrietta Meyer Bodycombe.

Dr. Martin To Speak At Club

"What Is an Educated Person?" is the intriguing sounding title of the lecture which Dr. Everett Dean Martin will give Monday before the Twentieth Century Club. Dr. Martin, who ranks among America's foremost educators, sociologists and psychologists, has been director of the Cooper Union Forum, New York, for 15 years. The lectures he has delivered there have not only attracted constantly increasing audiences but have also established his reputation as a speaker of extraordinary attainments. As a writer he has become equally well known through his notable books, some of which are "The Behavior of Crowds," "The Mystery of Religion," Psychology and Its Uses," "The Meaning of a Liberal Education" and "Liberty."

The only other lecturer next month will be Oliver M. Sayler, dramatic and literary critic, who will talk on "Cosmopolitan Plays." Mr. Sayler's keen interest in the Russian Theater took him into that country at the close of the war and later as publicist to Max Reinhardt, the Moscow Theater and Balieff, he did much to acquaint the American public with Russian drama.

The third Monday morning of the month will be given over to a program by the choral and on December 11 the drama committee will present an afternoon program. The music and art committee, which is sponsoring the choral's appearance will also present Eleanor Reynolds, contralto, in recital Thursday afternoon, December 4.

PATOU PRESENTS LATEST CREATION IN ENSEMBLES

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph,

PARIS, Nov. 26.—Even if the fabrics are entirely different the ensemble is still an ensemble for all that. For it is now the fashion to link dress and wrap of entirely different material by virtue of the color. This type of alliance has found more favor than the one fabric model that tended to become monotonous and is quite devoid of the subtle smartness which is a prerequisite of the mode. So many women have enthusiastically taken up this type of ensemble that it will no doubt be a carry-over for southern wear as well as for spring which sartorially speaking is nearly round the corner. For the type of ensemble here discussed, a material merger of satin and velvet is much liked. Satin frocks are coming into their own after a period of neglect and their shimmering charm is part of every evening picture. Beige is gaining in favor for all types of wear and is being noted here with increasing frequency as the season waxes and women become more definite in their dress demands.

JEAN PATOU HAS just completed the ensemble, two sketches of which are here shown. It is in the new manner and makes use of the same color in contrasting fabrics in a novel manner. The full length coat is of biscuit colored satin with a bloused top and full length sleeves with an ample collar and wide cuffs of Fisher fur. The appliqued pieces on the shoulder and hips of the coat are repeated in the design of the dress—another subtle hook-up. An unpressed pleat is placed at the center back and the rest of the coat has a circular flare. The dress of crepe byzantine is in matching hue and is simple in design with its slightly bloused bodice, small belt tying in front, appliqued yoke pieces and a softly hanging circular skirt of even hem line.

MUSIC

Mendelssohn Choir

Carnegie Music Hall

The Mendelssohn Choir opened its season last night in Carnegie Music Hall, presenting two important modern choral works of exceeding difficulty. As far as Pittsburgh's appreciation of the fine choral club is concerned, music - lovers proved their interest by staying at home. Had Mozart's skull or Wagner's pen been on display the crowd might have come, but our people lend no aid to the work of living men among us. The Mendelssohn Choir deserves something better.

J. Fred Lissfelt

Director Lunt devoted the first part of his program to Howard Hanson's Lament for Beowulf. The prelude of this dirge prophesies an interesting accompaniment of wild pipings and heart beats, but this accompaniment remains throughout the song the only vital feature of the music. This rhythmic force is totally lacking in the vocal line, and surely there is nothing of stirring nor primitive beauty to suggest the tribe or the epoch of Beowulf.

In comparison with Arthur Peichler's "Bursuum Corda," which comprised the second part of the program, Hanson's music disappears from notice. This Hymn to the Church, a dialog between the soul of man and the church, has moments of eloquence that suggest the Bible. About the poem Piechler has built monumental music. Like Wagner's scores the instrumental fabric of the work can stand alone and never lacks classic solidarity nor modern imagination. Musically the composer is a direct descendant of Palestrina and Bach, but Hindemith has somehow crept into his family. His choruses are conceived in the patterns of the mightiest music, however, with original and most deft personal trimmings, but the recitatives are contemporary in rhythm and intervals. The plan of his division of solo and choral parts in fitting music to text is seldom clear excepting in the Christmas song and the Easter music.

To the Mendelssohn singers comes the honor of presenting this highly important work for the first time in America. It is the most ambitious work that Director Lunt has tackled; its difficulties are colossal and as far as the chorus is concerned, it gave excellent account of itself. The Advent chorus for female voices, the grief-laden music of the Passion, the jubilant Whitsuntide chorus are outstanding fragments in the composition and were high spots in the choir's singing. The solo quartet and its relation to the great choruses was also skillfully managed by both composer and conductor, but of the solo singers only the soprano seemed to comprehend the mysteries of which she sang. A more imposing basso would have added much to the force of his trying music.

Organ accompaniment failed often to give sufficiently sturdy outlines to Piechler's accompaniments, and only an orchestra could do the score justice. It was a gigantic task even to learn such a score, and Earl Mitchell did a masterly job. The soloists were Irene Cramblett, Eda Kreiling, Arthur Kraft and Chester Sterling.

HIRE LAWYERS IN TAX FIGHT

The board of directors of the Lincoln District Board of Trade has authorized a special committee in charge of combatting increases in property assessment, to employ two law firms to carry the tax increase matter to court, in case the appeals of the Twelfth Ward property owners fail before the board of city assessors.

The action was taken at a meeting of the directors, called by the president, Joseph Marks, in the Lemington school last night. Brook W. Edmondston is chairman of the special committee to fight the increases.

A fund is being raised among citizens of the ward to finance the contest.

Tax Boost Protest May Go Into Court

If the Board of Assessment and Revision of Taxes fails to act upon the appeals of the Lincoln District Board against the increase in property assessments, members of the board will take the fight into Common Pleas Court, is was decided last night at a meeting of the directors of the organization. More than 1,000 property owners in the district have protested against the increase, it was said.

$75,000 LOSS IN BLAST, FIRE

Fire which swept the two-story brick building occupied by the Booth Chevrolet Company, 914 Market street, McKeesport, was extinguished at 2:30 a. m. today after raging since an explosion occurred at 8 o'clock last night. Equipment destroyed included 40 new and 15 used automobiles valued at $20,000, according to J. V. Booth, manager. Firemen estimated loss to building and contents at $75,000.

The flames started in the second floor of the building. Firemen today were seeking the cause of the blast, which blew out the entire front of the building. No gasoline was stored on the second floor, firemen were told.

Firemen saved the service station of the Peerless Oil Company and a building owned by the contracting firm of Blair & Mark, on adjoining sides of the destroyed structure.

SIDEWALKS —of— PITTSBURGH

Every now and then we shake our head and wonder what's become of the younger generation. If we do say it ourselves, we have wondered more often than any other head-shaker what is becoming of the younger generation.

William Pfarr

This latest dirge was suggested by a question put to us by Frank Rubenstein, the contractor. What, quizzes Mr. Rubenstein, has become of "grad money"?

Well, you don't hear of mad money in this sophisticated day. But if the young woman of today will only take time out from her frivolous antics (wild parties, etc.) she will find out about it. She will learn that in the good old days a respectable young woman never ventured out the front door without a sufficient sum of mad money. But the young woman today never gives a toss of her head about it. Why is this? Well, maybe it's because she's able to take care of herself. We don't know, but we're pretty well worked up about it.

A friend of ours stepped into an elevator in the Grant Building and asked the operator how long it took to go from bottom to top. The operator said that one out of every 10 passengers asks that question, and that it takes 34 seconds to reach the top—the thirty-seventh floor — without stops. He said that he averages 220 round trips a day. We figured out that if he traveled, on a straight line, the distance he covers in an elevator, in six months he'd be a pretty piece from home.

Short story: Deputy Sheriff Brown a few days ago went out to a home to take back furniture from a family which had not been able to meet its obligations. He had the necessary legal papers, and he was forced to take the furniture, for that's his job. But when he returned to his office he didn't have his gun. He had pawned it to buy food for that family.

We learned about what people read from Miss Bernice Martin, of the East End. Miss Martin has been a librarian. She knows that some men, mean old creatures, won't read books written by women. Once she fooled a man—she gave him a book written by E. Barrington, who occasionally writes under the nom de plume of L. Adams Beck. The man read the book, liked it and is still reading Miss Barrington's books, not knowing she is of the other sex.

Men usually don't want to be told how a story ends but women must know, or they won't read 'em. Married men like romance but they don't like a marriage in the early chapters—say page 26. Young bachelors like Wallace, Van Dine, Packard and other thrillers. Elderly women like whipped cream in their literature.

Some lawyers, like some other folk, like to use 10 words where one suffices. Probably the phrase most often used by lawyers is "party of the first part." Many attorneys concede that this could be reduced to one word (Jones, Smith, Brown, Wheel) in most cases. We asked a lawyer why not. He said he didn't know why not.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 26.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Every government in the world today has more discontented people than usual, but I think there is less complaint by the subjects in Russia than anywhere else. That is, they don't complain as long Russia hasn't today in her borders what you would call a constant critic. You simply say your say and then you are through. Russia is a country that is burying their troubles. Your criticism is your epitaph. "Here lies the body of Boris Ogimsky, he said Stalin the dictator, wouldn't last, but he outlived himsky."

Will Rogers

WILL ROGERS.

La Ralston, Once Ignored, Now in Demand by Movie Studios

By HARRISON CARROLL.

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 26.

In the inscrutable fashion of the movies, Esther Ralston now is as much sought after as she was ignored during the latter days of her contract with Paramount.

The blonde star played Lawrence Tibbett's leading woman in "The Southerner," and could have stayed on at M. G. M. if she had made salary concessions.

At this writing, she is on the verge of signing at Pathe to play one of the feminine leads in "Lonely Wives." Oddly enough, this picture also will see another prominent star—Laura La Plante—on her way to a comeback.

Esther Ralston

Edward Everett Horton, who at last found a screen role worthy of him in "Holiday," will play one of the masculine leads in "Lonely Wives." Like so many players in the talkie version of the Phillip Barry comedy, Horton has been busy ever since turning down offers for his services.

"Lonely Wives" is a farce comedy, and Russell Mack will direct. There still is one prominent feminine part to be cast.

SEEK NEW TALENT

All studios in Hollywood realize the need of fresh talent, and while they continue to look to the stage for the most of it, the hinterlands are not being neglected.

This will be seen from the fact that a special department at the Fox studio makes 50 tests a week of screen newcomers. Emulating the police "shadow box," it is compulsory for all directors to see the favored tests.

Scouts are searching everywhere for prospects. Among the candidates have been an usherette in a local theater and the driver of a sight-seeing bus in Catalina.

To date there have been no discoveries, but there's always the chance that another Lewis Ayres is to be found just around the corner.

IMPORTANT MOMENTS

One of those incidents that make you shudder to realize how close disaster is at all times occurred at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio during the windstorm of last week.

John Miljan

A company was shooting an exterior on the lot. John Miljan, one of Hollywood's well-known "heavies" and character actors, was standing on a wagon. For some reason the director decided to make a change in the scene. He called to Miljan to step down.

As the actor's foot touched the ground, there was a sharp report, and the upper half of a eucalyptus tree crashed onto the wagon, demolishing it.

In this same storm, an awning blew off a Hollywood hotel, enveloped a pedestrian, dragged him quite a way, and broke his arm.

I NOTE THAT —

Thelma Todd and Ivan Lebedeff, one of Hollywood's dapperest monocle and hand-kissing men, are seen frequently together these days. . . . Bessie Love is said to have asked Pathe for $5,000 a week to play in a picture. . . Richard Barthelmess is due here in two weeks and expects to start his new picture about January 6. So far, no story has been selected, but First National has several for his consideration. . . Tay Garnett, the director, is ill with influenza. . . . Lois Moran has four months leave from Fox, and is doing a Broadway play. . . . Harold Lloyd arrived in town last Saturday. Although the judge absolved him personally, he'll appeal that plagiarism decision given the H. C. Witwer estate.

WOMAN URGES GOOD LIQUORS

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 26.—Mrs. B. F. Fairless, wife of the executive vice president of the Republic Steel Corporation, has consented to serve as chairman of the Youngstown branch of the woman's organization for national prohibition reform.

Miss Dorothy Cline, of Cleveland, state organizer, said that 25 prominent women will become charter members.

Mrs. Fairless said:

"Perhaps the whole world ought to be dry, but since it is not, let us have good liquors and drink with discretion."

Trade Board Names 7 for Directorships

The West View Board of Trade has nominated seven directors from which five will be elected for three-year terms at the December meeting. They are C. V. Shoup, H. H. Wilt, V. H. Walter, George Keller, Louis Beethaler, George Kiedaisch and M. A. Kenny.

Sad Parting

Darling, I'm a Mrs. now,
All our fun is ended.
You're still young, but I'm a frau,
Trusted and well tended.

Time or tears will not erase
Stubborn recollections.
I shall miss your eager face,
All your imperfections.

But farewell, sleek head and trim,
Here's my simple story,
I love you, I married him
To pay my bills and bore me.

Again farewell, my lost and sweet,
But promise if there be time,
When I'm a bit depressed, you'll meet
And comfort me at tea-time.

Mad Hattie.

Joosh Joke

Among the town diversions are the Sabbath nights held weekly at the Central Park Casino. A notable of this profession or that one is the host and a hundred or two sans-eleb-rities are invited. E. Carroll and L. Schurr have already served in that role. Norman-Bel Geddes is next Sunday night's host and then La Joyce is listed. Last Sunday evening Mr. George Jessel officiated.

Among his entertainers was Mr. Lou Holtz, who told the one about the dialectician who came to a middle-class hotel in the Catskills. Throwing down the pen, he bellowed to the bell-hops:

"Gat me my bags, my bags gat me!"

"Why, what's the matter?" asked the startled clerk.

"Diss iss de matter!" barked the upset heeb. "I've sinn cuckruches on walls, I've sinn cuckruches on beds, on ceilings and so futt. But never in my life deed I sinn a cuckruch wukking on a register to find out what room I'm gatting!"

Oop!

Mr. Jessel also called on Fannie Brice, Dora Maughan and several others, including Harold Rosenthal, a pianist. Mr. Rosenthal hesitated.

"I do not know what to play," he said.

"Why not play some of the songs," suggested Jessel, "you wish you had written?"

Add Sillies

Take it from Betty Starbuck, one of the more amusing comediennes, there is a swift-thinker who crashes the gates of busy business men telling the man on the door: "I must see him at once—I'm for the government." The lad invariably is ushered right in. Then he begins his fast sales talk about insurance, books or laughing soup.

"Here, here," the busy business man interrupts, "I thought you said you were for the government?"

"Sure I did," is the indifferent retort. "Aren't you?"

A Form of Criticism

Miss Guinan pointed out a recently elected-to-public-office man, who poses as a dry, but who drinks like an actress who has breakdowns.

"That guy's so wet," said La Guinan, "that if you blew on him—he'd ripple."

Things to Worry About

The Big Idea, it appears, is to wait until a word or a phrase becomes popular before someone points out that Shakespeare or Cain or Abel said it. Then it is usually included in the dictionary. The most recent controversy was over "whoopee," which is supposed to be 300 years old—yet some writers still spell it whoopie.

Elinor Glyn is credited with the word "It" as associated with personality. However, Dr. Vizetelly of the dictionary racket and other veterans have not yet taken the trouble to credit Kipling with it. At any rate, Kippy said it before Elinor did. Take his "Traffics and Discoveries" (McMillan & Co., Lt., 1904) in the story of "Mrs. Bathhurst."

Turn to page 352—eleventh line and find:

"'Tisn't beauty, so to speak, nor good talk necessarily. It's just It."

Ripley It or Not

Bill Hansen reports that times are so tough a sheriff hung a sign outside his office reading: "Murderer Wanted," and 18 men applied.

Telegram

"My attention," affectionately wires Joseph von Sternberg, the so-called movie director from Jollywood, "was called to the fact that on October 27 your column carried the eagerly awaited information that my real tag is Styninski. You are wrong and use very bad English in your idiotic column."

Veriwell, Mr. Styninski.

Overheard

"Of all the crickets," argued an actor, "I think that guy on the Daily Mirror is the worst."

"You mean critics, don't you?" said his listener.

"Nope, I don't," was the reply. "I mean crickets!"

"Wait a moment. A cricket is an insect—an insect, you dope?"

"Well?"

Revue

Doris Vinton will be seen in "The Garrick Gaieties," Theater Guild revue, which will be next week's offering in the Nixon.

NOTES ABOUT COMING STAGE AND SCREEN ATTRACTIONS

A cast of well-known players has been assembled by Sam H. Harris to play in "June Moon," which will be the attraction in the Shubert-Alvin, beginning Monday. Harry Rosenthal, the orchestra leader, has the role of Maxie, a song arranger. The cast includes Edith Van Cleve, Frank Otto, Ruth Abbott, Frank Conlon, Elaine Temple, Patricia Chapman, Milano Tilden, Ross Hertz, Fred Irving Lewis, Adeline Ogilvie and Thomas Gillen.

Vernon Duke, who wrote most of the music for the new fall edition of "Garrick Gaieties," the Theater Guild's musical revue coming to the Nixon Monday, is really Vladimir Dukelsky. He once composed a ballet, "Zephyr and Flora," which has been performed in London, Paris, Monte Carlo, Berlin and Barcelona.

Monday night's performance of "She Got What She Wanted" in the Pitt next week will be under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary of the Allegheny County Medical Society.

NEW FILMS TOMORROW

Constance Bennett is supported by Kenneth MacKenna, Basil Rathbone, Zasu Pitts, Rita La Roy, Louis Bartels and John Roche in her new comedy "Sin Takes a Holiday," which opens a week's run in both the Fulton and Sheridan Square tomorrow.

"Just Imagine," a comedy-fantasy based upon life in 1980, comes to the Warner tomorrow, with El Brendel, Swedish comedian, in the leading role.

The Enright changes from Friday openings to Thursday beginning tomorrow with the presentation of "The Truth About Youth." Loretta Young is the star. Dick Powell will present "Harvest Moon" on the stage.

EDDIE QUILLAN COMING

Eddie Quillan will come to the Stanley Friday. He will appear in person in Ed Lowry's stage show, "Masquerade," and on the screen in the talkie, "Big Money."

One dark-eyed senorita should be enough to keep two men busy fighting over, but in "A Devil With Women," Victor McLaglen's latest comedy drama, coming Friday to the Aldine, the star and his rival successfully come to blows over three such charmers, Mona Maris, Luana Alcanis and Mona Rico have the parts.

Five new vaudeville acts and Bert Lytell's film, "Brothers," will come to the Harris Saturday.

"Hi Ho Everybody" opens in the Academy Sunday night with a midnight show. Joe Freed and Connie St. Clair co-star.

Howard Hughes, whose $4,000,000 air-war film, "Hell's Angels," opens Friday in the Penn, is the youngest producer and director in the movie business. Hughes, who is only 25, is a multi-millionaire.

ERK MAJORITY RECORD HERE

Leading all candidates on the Republican ticket in his district in the recent general election, Edmund F. Erk received a majority of 28,730 votes over the Democratic and minor party candidates in his election to Congress in the Thirty-second district, according to the official count disclosed by the return board today.

Erk's is the largest majority ever given a candidate for Congress on a single ticket in this county, it is said. He was nominated unanimously by Thirty-second District committeemen late in September to succeed the late Stephen G. Porter, whose death occurred following the spring primaries when he was named by the Republican voters for the eleventh consecutive term in Congress.

Nixon Restaurant Has Holiday Bill

The Nixon restaurant announces a special dinner, in addition to its floor show, as a Thanksgiving feature. The show includes Peters and Farrell, singers; Margaret and LeRoy, dancers; Bertha Muller and Simmie Solar, singing master of ceremonies. Merle Jacobs and his orchestra play for the dinner and dancing.

U. S. Engineer Denies Water Reserve Lack

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Nov. 26.—Reports that additional reserve supplies of water for use of navigation in the Monongahela River at the West Penn Power Company's reservoir at Lake Lynn were lacking and that navigation would be suspended, are branded as false by John W. Arras, of the United States Engineering Department at Pittsburgh. He declared there were still 30,000-acre feet of water in the impounding dam on the Cheat River that can be used and that the river can be kept at a sufficiently high level for navigation until January 1 unless a protracted freezing spell occurs before then.

Plan Air Circus For Bettis Field

Looping, spinning, up-side-down flying, barrel rolls, parachute leaps and acrobatics will feature the "Hell's Angles Air Circus" to be held at Bettis Field Sunday. The events are being arranged by A. G. Becker of the Curtis-Wright Flying Service in conjunction with the management of the Penn Theater, where "Hell's Angels" opens a week's engagement Friday. The stunts will start promptly at 1:45.

The Woman of today keeps free of colds

When you carry VAPEX in your handbag no cold has the chance to grip you

Your days are so full of activity that you simply cannot allow a cold to interfere with your routine or blight your pleasure.

So you will find that Vapex—the delightful inhalant—is a reliable companion to have always at hand.

For Vapex checks a cold at the start. Does it simply. And easily. A drop on your handkerchief—a few deep breaths of the fragrance—and you'd scarcely believe you had a cold. The vapor keeps its strength all day. Vapex can also be used on the pillow—a drop at each end.

Be wary when some one offers you a product that is "just as good as Vapex and cheaper." Vapex is the inhalant approved by Good Housekeeping. Millions of bottles are sold yearly. It has never been successfully imitated.

And after all, a single application of Vapex costs only 2c. The $1 bottle contains fifty applications. Ask for V-A-P-E-X always and insist on obtaining it.

New Downtown Library for Business People

THE UNION TRUST COMPANY OF PITTSBURGH takes pleasure in announcing that the Business Branch of Carnegie Library is now located in Room 247, Union Trust Building.

The Business Branch has achieved notable success in serving the business interests of downtown Pittsburgh. Because of expansion in the City-County Building, the Branch was forced to move, and its existence was threatened. Believing in the importance of library service to the business community, The Union Trust Company was glad to make its space available.

Financial Information: Moody, Poor, Standard Statistics, Brookmire.

Directories: Many large cities and important trades.

The best books on business economics, accounting, advertising, purchasing, office procedure, and other phases of business.

General Reference: Encyclopedias, English and foreign dictionaries, atlases, statistical manuals and technical handbooks.

Daily delivery service and a direct telephone wire from the Main Library bring to the Business Branch information and books not available in its own collection.

The Union Trust Company joins with Carnegie Library in inviting you to visit the Business Branch in its new quarters and see how it can serve you.

Breaking Out on Baby Lasted One Year. - Healed by Cuticura.

"We first noticed the trouble when our baby was two months old. It started with small red pimples on her left cheek and almost covered it. The breaking out itched badly and she scratched and irritated it. When she was awake she used to rub it until it would bleed. The trouble lasted one year.

"We tried different remedies but they failed to help her. We began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in about a month she was completely healed, after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment." (Signed) Eugene C. Vey, 215 Spring St., Bellevue, Pa., April 9, 1930.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Sample each free. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. H, Malden, Mass."

DUAL FOOTBALL CARD HERE TOMORROW

ALWAYS AN OCCASION of football feasts, Thanksgiving Day will be doubly so in Pittsburgh this year, as there are two appealing college numbers on the local program for tomorrow, with the Dukes meeting Providence College at Forbes Field in the morning at 10:30 o'clock, and Pitt lining up against Penn State at the Stadium in the afternoon at 2 o'clock. In the forenoon event the city will welcome a new visiting attraction, Providence playing here for the first time, and in the other it will say goodbye to its oldest holiday fixture in any sport, Penn State making its final appearance as a Pittsburgh Turkey Day card after an unbroken run of 28 years.

Frank Diedrich

There is every prospect that Capt. Frank Diedrich and his mates from Mt. Nittany will give the Panthers a much harder fight than appeared probable a short time ago. The Lions have been defeated in the holiday grapple eight years in succession and have not tasted victory in the annual engagement since 1919, the meetings of 1920 and 1921 having resulted in scoreless ties. The dope again points to Pitt as the probable winner, but even if there is no upset the game is likely to prove much more of a battle than was originally promised.

A FEW WEEKS ago, with Pitt apparently headed for a strong finish and State in a losing streak, this game in the distance didn't look like such a big attraction, but developments in the meantime have tended to bring the teams nearer to even terms. For the Panthers have been cut down in strength considerably in losing the services of Jim MacMurdo and Paul Collins, and possibly also those of Walter Milligan and Josh Williams, the latter two through injury and illness.

On the other hand, State has all of its man power, and with the Lions hungry for one good football meal and retaining their old preference for Panther meat to turkey on Thanksgiving Day, the team is certain to have an unusual lot of fighting spirit, as well. All of which has put new hope in the breasts of Blue and White followers. With the cutting down of Pitt and the rise of State, there ought to be a real fight at the Stadium to feature the Lions' Turkey Day farewell.

Charley Bleiler

FOURTEEN MEMBERS OF the Duquesne squad, including eight regulars, will be playing their final college game tomorrow, and naturally will be extending themselves for a victorious finish, but indications are that they won't be able to land on top without a hard struggle.

Providence has shown its strength by beating Rutgers and pressing Holy Cross and other prominent teams. Besides, it has been pointed for this particular game, and with a clever field general in Charley Bleiler, a fast backfield and a capable line, the visitors shape up as likely to give the Bluffites all they can handle.

CARNEGIE TECH CONTINUES to be in great demand for post-season games. The Skibos have received more invitations than any other team in the East to appear in special contests following their big charity game with Wash-Jeff here next Saturday. Two more requests came yesterday to Graduate Manager Clarence Overend. The first was a wire from Southern Methodist, in Dallas, Tex., as follows: "Can you accept football game with Southern Methodist at Dallas this December 6? Stadium seating 46,000. Terms, to split 50-50 of net. Must have quick acceptance. Regards. R. N. Blackwell, business manager athletics."

AS WAS THE case when similar invitations were received from New York and Miami recently, Manager Overend was forced to decline, owing to school regulations which will not permit the Skibos to continue their gridiron activities beyond the period of the regular schedule. He sent the following reply to Manager Blackwell: "Thanks for invitation. Our faculty will not permit post-season game this year."

The other invitation received yesterday came from Western Maryland College, at Westminster, Md., asking Carnegie to play a post-season game in Baltimore for charity. Western Maryland, coached by Dick Harlow, has not been defeated since it lost to Temple and Maryland in succession in 1928, and won 20 straight games before it was held to a tie by Albright last Saturday... Manager Overend declined this proposal also on account of faculty rules.

THE NICKNAME OF Buckeyes has been adjudged too tame for a fighting football team like that of Ohio State University. A fiercer title is being sought by the Student Senate to be applied for the first time to the eleven of 1931.

Billy Marks

The new name will be "more typical of the team," it is said by those who started the movement. A committee of students and Columbus newspaper men is being organized to ponder the problem.

THE GRIDIRON AND the midiron seem so far apart in their technique that it appears strange to find one person a standout in both. But that is the contradictory spectacle presented this year at Kiski. Billy Marks, young son of Jim Marks, the football strategist, is the performer. Young Billy is a golfer of more than local note. In 1928, when he was only 14, he lasted into the final round of the Western Pennsylvania junior championship tournament. Last year he was runner-up for the same title. He was captain of the Kiski team that went down to Greenwich, Conn., in 1929 and won the Eastern interscholastic golf championship over the pick of the schools of the East. That is supposed to be the biggest championship in scholastic golf. Kiski, in that tournament, defeated Hill, Lawrenceville, Choate, Hotchkiss and 26 other leading schools.

WITH ALL THAT golf background, the junior Marks jumped into football, made the varsity team at Kiski this year, was elected captain, and has taken the bumps in one of the hardest gridiron schedules that Kiski has known in many seasons, playing against the freshmen of Army, Navy, Pitt, Carnegie Tech, Penn and W. & J. He plays at right end, runs the team on the field, calls the signals, and takes many of the passes, which are thrown by Kadlic, Kiski's quarterback. That also gets him his share of hard tacklers.

It is so customary to think of a tournament golfer as a delicately co-ordinated machin that 't seems strange to see one being manhandled on a football field. But Jim Marks says football won't hurt his son's golf. Young Billy hopes to capture the West Penn Junior next year. Incidentally, he is president of the Eastern Interscholastic Golf Association. Meanwhile, Billy is nursing a sore leg, the result of an injury suffered in the Army Freshmen game at West Point, but is ready to take his team to Chapel Hill, N. C., to meet the University of North Carolina Freshmen.

GARDEN PLANS BOUT WITH CHAMPION

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Tommy Freeman

That is likely to be Santa Claus' li'l Christmas present for the Pittsburgh boxing fans, as a result of McTiernan's decisive victory over Sergt. Sammy Baker, of New York, at Motor Square Garden last Monday night.

The bout is virtually arranged and is planned for the special matinee show on Christmas Day.

According to Jules Beck, matchmaker of the Garden, Freeman's manager, Tommy McGinty, of Cleveland, has consented to the match and only a possible hitch over weight can prevent it from going through. McTiernan weighed 153½ pounds against Baker and that is about his best weight. If Freeman should insist on an impossible weight, such as 151 or 152 pounds, a serious obstacle might bar consummation of the deal.

WINS NEW FRIENDS

Even those fans who have been slow to concede McTiernan's ability were won over by his classy exhibition against Baker, and were admitting that they had not judged him fairly before this bout. His fine execution with his left hand and his straight right, together with his cool boxing and clean tactics throughout, combined to show him off at his best, and he looked like a champion in the making, as he had up to the time of the illness that put him on the sidelines last winter.

If anything should happen to prevent a meeting with Champion Freeman, McTiernan likely will be rematched with Bucky Lawless for Christmas Day. Lawless recently was awarded a disputed decision over him, which Buck is anxious to wipe out in a return bout.

TOPS LOCAL FIELD

Anyway, McTiernan now is up on top in the local fighting ranks again, and, if he should happen to "take" Freeman, as seems not at all unlikely on last Monday's form, Pittsburgh will have its first fighter of outstanding importance since the days of Harry Greb and Jack Zivic, not forgetting, of course, Willie Davies, the flyweight, who dates back to the days of both of these.

Between Rounds

Apples Meyers has completed the card for his show in the Moose Temple Friday night in the main bout of which Jimmy Neal, of Cincinnati, makes his local debut, against Ted Yarosz, Monaca welterweight, who has not been defeated in his pro career and recently has scored victories over Tiger Joe Randall and Jimmy Belmont. Frank Novak, of the North Side, and Dan Gallagher, of the West End, heavies, box the semi-final, a return bout; Al Iovino, of Swissvale, and Mose Butch, of Oakland, a couple of southpaw bantams, are in the second bout, and Jackie Wilson, of Homewood, and Bud Mahoney, of the North Side, box the opened. The winner of the main bout is to be matched with Joey Goodman.

Al Friedman, Boston heavyweight, who meets Emmett Rocco, of Ellwood City, in the main bout at Motor Square Garden next Monday night, turned in a good win when he got up off the floor in the first round to come back and beat Dick Daniels, of Minneapolis, in their 10-round shindy in Boston last Monday night. Daniels has been a consistent winner among the heavies. Friedman also claims victories over Babe Hunt, Tuffy Griffiths, Ernie Schaaf, Al Fay, Jack Renault, Marty Gallagher, Chuck Wiggins, Jack Gagnon, Paul Swiderski, Paul Cavalier, Joe Monte, Bud Gorman and Dr. Ludwig Haymann, and has knocked out James J. Lawless, Big Boy Rasson, Walter Madey and a number of others.

Rocco and Friedman have fought once before. They met in the main bout of a show at the baseball park at New Castle, Pa., in 1928, with Friedman winning the decision. Rocco recently has been going in his best stride. He defeated Tom Heeney and knocked out George Panka in his last two starts, both in the Garden ring.

The Harold Scarney-Harry Williams semi-final at the Garden Monday night will be limited to six rounds instead of the usual eight. The card has been completed with the signing of Jimmy Belmont and Jackie Herman for the second bout and Sharkey Lesko and Billy Sullivan, nephew of Alderman Luke Sullivan, for the opener.

Ray Eberle, the announcer, is requested to call Atlantic 9999 and ask for Mr. McGrady.

The Frankie Porto vs. Midget Mike O'Dowd show originally scheduled for Newark, O., tonight has been set back one week.

Charley Baxter and Red Holloway box at Indianapolis tonight.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE ORIGIN OF THE WORD "MEANDER"—Meander, meaning winding or crooked, is derived from the ancient name of a river in Phrygia. This stream, which is proverbial for its winding and tortuous channel, is known now as the Menderez. It flows into the Agean Sea opposite the Island of Samos off the coast of Asia Minor. (Reference: "Popular Questions Answered," by George Stimpson, George Sully & Co., New York City.) THREE TOUCHDOWNS ON PASSES IN FOUR MINUTES—With only four minutes left to play, when Bend and Seaside were playing in the finals for the state football championship of Oregon in 1925, a pass from Loomis to O'Brien resulted in a touchdown. After the kickoff, Loomis brought the ball to Bend's 40-yard line, and, on the next play, passed to O'Brien for another touchdown. Seaside kicked off again and Loomis ran the ball back to Bend's 40-yard line a second time, and, for the third time, Loomis passed to O'Brien for a touchdown. It was Bend's game, 19 to 0. CUBS SEEK BOTTOMLEY

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Late rumblings from the Chicago front are to the effect that Rogers Hornsby is anxious to make a change at first base, and, of course, a move of this sort would mean a new set of battle togs for one Charles (Lefty) Grimm, than whom there are no cleverer firstsackers.

Hornsby is said to be seeking Sunny Jim Bottomley, another southpaw gateway tender. Sunny Jim over a long stretch of games may be a better hitter than the former Pirate star, but Lefty has a big margin on Bottomley in a defensive way. Grimm tops them all, including Terry, in all-around fielding value.

Grimm's salary has reached such figures that more than one team would hesitate before acceding to the financial obligation. Lefty has been a Cub star for six years and Der Captain probably received a nice boost each year from this combine. It is altogether likely that he draws down at least $15,000 per year.

Pittsburgh's intercollegiate football tide for 1930 will begin running out tomorrow as two of the final three contests on the local boards are played. After tomorrow, when Pitt and the Dukes wind up their campaigns with morning and afternoon contests here, it will remain for Carnegie and Wash-Jeff to end it all with their benefit game for the unemployed in the Stadium Saturday.

Franklin Hood.

Pitt has its annual tussle with Penn State booked for the Stadium tomorrow afternoon. In the morning, the Dukes ride forth to battle for the last time against Providence College, a newcomer on the local lists.

The Nittany Lions are due in town early this afternoon and will stage their final practice of the season on the Stadium turf later in the day. Following the workout of the Lions, the Panthers will stage their final drill.

Despite defeats at the hands of Ohio State and Notre Dame and the tie game played with Nebraska, Pitt rules a favorite to take State tomorrow. The record of the Lions has been even less impressive than that of the Panthers. Iowa, Bucknell and Colgate have taken State and Syracuse fought 'em to a scoreless tie, or, if you must have it that way, State fought the Orange even.

PITT STARS THROUGH

The contest on the morrow will mark the final appearance of several members of the Pitt cast in varsity roles. Franklin Hood, the original tough luck guy of football, one of the game's greatest passers, will wind up his career. Captain Eddie Baker, Josh Williams, southpaw halfback; Charley Tully, veteran tackle; Bill Walinchus, halfback; Jack Kelly, halfback; Eddie Scultz, end, and Ernie Lewis, sturdy little guard, are others who will take their final bows against the Lions.

The Panthers hold a decided edge in the series with State. Pitt has won 18 times against 12 for State, with two tie games. The

KING WINTER ACTS TO AID IN UNEMPLOYMENT SITUATION

The heavy overnight snowfall today made it necessary for the Pitt athletic authorities to take heroic measures to get the Stadium gridiron cleared for the annual football battle with Penn State tomorrow. Frank Mecca, groundkeeper, hired a crew of men for the job and they are seen above doing their stuff.

The brilliant, spectacular and effective net guarding of Albie Cox, Pittsburgh's new goalie, stood out like a beacon in a fog as the Yellow Jackets battled the Windsor Bulldogs to a 4-4 deadlock in an International League hockey game witnessed by more than 3,000 fans at Duquesne Garden last night.

To those ice enthusiasts who did not share in last night's hockey feast it may seem that Albie was fairly liberal in permitting the Bulldogs to feed on Yellow Jacket salad to the extent of four goals. Those in attendance know that three of the Windsor tallies were registered on shots which no goalie could save and that Cox's great work was largely responsible for denying the visitors a total of four times four.

Albie came here by way of New Haven, Boston and Montreal. He need not worry about his next destination, for indications are that he will be here for a long time.

McCURRY SHOWS WELL

Duke McCurry, another new Jacket, shared laurels with Cox as Pittsburgh garnered its first point in the league standings. When the locals were trailing by 4-2 late in the last regular period, Duke was transferred from the defense to the front line that he might have more opportunity to show "the old fight," and he expressed his appreciation by slamming home two goals within three minutes to tie the count and force the fray into an overtime stanza.

The scoring of the second McCurry goal set off a verbal explosion that fairly rocked the Craig street arena. It was tallied from a rebound in a wild scrimmage in front of the Windsor goal, and on the shot the puck slipped only about three inches beyond the goal line. When Goal Judge Fritz Campbell flashed the red light, Clint Benedict, who played here with the Montreal Maroons last season, voiced the opinion that no goal had been scored. He voiced his opinion very lustily and at great length, and it was only a matter of a few seconds until all of the players on both clubs had joined in the shouting. The fans added to the confusion by howling in glee at the Bulldogs' mental discomfort. Throughout the uproar Goal Judge Campbell remained adamant, and when the puck was eventually faced off in center ice it was apparent that of the million odd words spoken, the officials had elected to regard Mr. Campbell's word as the last word. Benedict has been in pro hockey for 17 years, long enough to know that you don't have to knock the back out of the cage to score.

Each team bagged two goals in the first period, which, despite the mesh denting, was the most calm and peaceful 20 minutes of a fairly torrid fray. Whitey Fields opened the scoring after four minutes with a high, hot shot from the blue line, after he had taken a pass from McCurry. George Lever, Windsor right wing, matched the Fields tally four minutes later, when his shot from the side boards struck Cox's skate and was deflected into the cage. This was Albie's only "weak moment."

LOCALS IN FRONT

Tory Gregg, local captain, took a pass from Cam Proudlock at the goal mouth and beat Benedict to put Pittsburgh out in front again when four minutes of play remained in the stanza, but Northcott batted in King's rebound to knot the count again just 25 seconds before the gong.

The battling in the second stanza was hot, but unproductive for 19 minutes and 40 seconds, but even as the timer reached for the gong Phillips took a pass from Northcott at the goal mouth and shoveled the disc past Cox as he leaned against the local goalie. Only Albie's great work limited the Windsor scoring in this stanza to one goal, and Proudlock, McCurry and Gregg gave Benedict plenty of trouble.

ROBINSON TALLIES

The fourth and last Windsor goal was registered by Robinson just 50 seconds after the opening of the third period. The Bulldog center knifed right through the local defense and beat Cox from close in.

The Jackets' furious five-men rushes were ineffective for 15 minutes thereafter, and then McCurry got in his deadly work. McLeod's pass from the boards to the goal mouth paved the way for his first scoring thrust, and then his disputed goal which effected the deadlock followed.

In the overtime period the Jackets played a defensive game and succeeded in holding the Bulldogs at bay.

Tommy Hughitt and Dink Madden, two gentlemen prominent in sports, officiated. Hughitt was quarterback on the Michigan grid teams of 1912, 1913 and 1914, and Madden is a former local ice star. The lineup:

Tubby Moore, defenseman obtained from Montreal, reported here yesterday and broke into the lineup in the second period. He teamed with Art Berlett at the points, and showed to fair advantage. Big Art was a tower of strength defensively, and because Cliff McBride was out with an injured hip, he had to do more than his share of the work.

Jackets—4.		Windsor—4.
Cox	G	Benedict
Berlett	D	Brown
McCurry	D	Arbour
Fields	C	Duguid
Proudlock	W	Northcott
Gregg	W	Phillips

Jacket spares—Green, McLeod, Halliday, Larroche, Ouellette, Smith, McIntyre, Fisher. Windsor spares—Bellemer, Hinsperger, Robinson, Duncan, Lever, King.

Referee—Madden and Hughitt.

MY FIFTY YEARS IN BASEBALL

By CONNIE MACK,
Manager, World Champion Philadelphia Athletics

INSTALLMENT NO. 69.

In the '80's and '90's major league baseball parks were anything but monuments to the game. They were hastily constructed of the cheapest timber that could be bought, and, when one looks back to those days, the wonder is that they stood up as they did.

Connie Mack

Today, Class B leagues have more elaborate improvements for their patrons than the majors did in those pioneer times.

The Philadelphia National League club built the first steel plant, and, to the amazement of everybody, surrounded it with a brick wall. Strangers used to come to Philadelphia to see the ball park that had a brick wall built around it.

At the present time, this plant, which led all others for some years, still is in use, although enlarged, but it is completely outmoded by the many modern plants around the nation.

Shibe Park, opened to the public in 1909, was the first modern plant and it has been enlarged on several occasions and now seats nearly 33,000 persons.

A wave of park building followed in other cities, and, as time wore on, they were able to take advantage of new improvements in stadium structure. Concrete now is largely used in building these plants.

THE NEW PARKS

The Cincinnati club had the distinction of building the first stands made of concrete. John T. Brush, who then owned the club, was the first baseball man to use cement in the construction of his stands.

He got the idea from a skyscraper built of concrete and steel shortly before in Cincinnati. The Cincinnati club outgrew this revolutionary stand and its ripped and replaced with a doubledecker of the same material by August Herrman.

The mammoth stands of the Yankees in New York now are the largest in America and the Athletics had the distinction of being the visiting team when the biggest crowd in baseball history gathered there.

That was on September 9, 1928, at a doubleheader with the American League pennant at stake, and more than 76,000 paid to get inside.

The latest park to be opened is Comiskey Park in Chicago, second to the Yankee Stadium in size, but there is a municipal stadium being erected in Cleveland that will top the White Sox capacity and may even equal or exceed the Yankee capacity. The Cleveland club will play its games at this mammoth stadium, which is scheduled to be opened late in 1931.

MATTER OF SPACE

The reason there are not more parks with a capacity of 50,000 or more is a question of space. Virtually every major league park has used every square inch of space possible for it to use without encroaching on the playing area and this has been done in many instances to the straining point.

Every club in the American League and most of those in the National now owns its grounds, in contrast to the practice not many years ago, when nearly every club paid ground rent.

The stands of today in the majors are double to five times as big as they were at the beginning of the country, and, moreover, they have all comforts and conveniences for patrons.

Shibe Park is not the biggest in the majors, but, if I say it myself, there is none which gives more to the patron. It is regarded as the model park of baseball.

It is the only park in the majors where every seat is covered. There are no bleachers at this park and even the patron in the cheapest section is protected from both rain and the intense sun of midsummer.

AMPLIFIERS APPEAR

Shibe Park also is the only major league park where scorecards are distributed free and where the batting orders of both teams are plainly marked on the scoreboards in huge letters so that all names may be read from any part of the stands.

This park was the ... to introduce amplifiers through which all announcements and batting and pitching changes are made at the same time so everybody can plainly hear them. Other parks were quick to follow the lead and adopt the system for their plants.

As I go around the country playing exhibition games I visualize the marked improvement in minor league parks. Today they are far superior to the major league stands of 25 years ago.

I was much impressed by the big, new plants in Montreal, Toronto and Buffalo. We play the Newark club every spring and its new park is a tribute to the owners. The Newark club is operated on true major league lines by Paul Block, its progressive owner.

REFLECTS GROWTH

I am mentioning only a few of these monuments to baseball in the minors. In the Pacific Coast League, Los Angeles has one of the biggest and most modern plants in America.

This era of building in both the major and minor leagues is the best meter to register the tremendous growth in baseball.

Paddy Sullivan Given Trial By Jackets

Paddy Sullivan, one of the most popular centers ever to wear Pittsburgh hockey livery, is to be given a tryout with the Yellow Jackets, Roy D. Schooley, president and manager of the local club, announced today.

Paddy, who starred at center for the local Yellow Jackets and Hornets when they were winning national amateur titles a few years ago, arrived here from Canada yesterday. He is to participate in the Jackets' workouts, beginning this afternoon, and may appear in the local lineup Saturday night, when the locals meet the Detroit Olympics at Duquesne Garden.

SWARTHMORE ELECTS

CALIFORNIA U. AFTER COACH

BERKELEY, Cal., Nov. 26.—(AP.)—The University of California began today to look over the leading football coaches of the country to find a successor to Clarence (Nibs) Price, whose resignation has been accepted.

The athletic council met to indorse candidates, but gave out no information. Its recommendations were to be considered last night by the student executive committee, by whom the coaches are employed.

Names heard on the campus included Tad Jones, former Yale coach; Knute Rockne, of Notre Dame; Dr. J. W. Wilce, former mentor of Ohio State; Dick Hanley, of Northwestern, and others from the East, North and South.

Anzacs Withdraw From Cup Play

MELBOURNE, Australia, Nov. 26.—(AP.)—The Australian Lawn Tennis Association today decided unanimously not to challenge for the 1931 Davis Cup. The association also defeated a motion to reinstate Jo Anderson, internationally known player, as an amateur.

HOMESTEAD OUT OF LEAGUE

By JULIUS LEVIN.

Unable to obtain a suitable floor on which to stage its home games, the Homestead entry has withdrawn from the Allegheny County League, according to an announcement this morning by John Sullivan, manager of the quintet.

Last year the Homestead club used the floor of the Homestead Elks, but officials of that organization have decided not to permit basketball games in their hall this winter. Another reason for the withdrawal of the club is said to be the lack of finances to operate the team.

The elimination of Homestead as a contender leaves only seven clubs on the roster. They are Pintex, Beckman Motors, Griffen Oils, of Glassport, Charleroi, J. J. Mieles, Duquesne Lafayettes and Ellwood City. The season is scheduled to open on December 1.

St. Michael's inaugurated the West Penn League season last night by taking over the North Side Bulcks, 42 to 27, on the St. Joseph's floor.

Faith Chapel took the lead in the Pittsburgh Senior Church League by upsetting the Trinity Cathedral Royals, 29 to 18, while the First Presbyterian aggregation bumped Mt. Troy Presbyterian, 36 to 6.

CHARITY TILT REFUSED

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 26.—(AP.)—The offer of St. Mary's to play the University of Southern California football team in a charity game at San Francisco, December 13 was rejected by the General Athletic Commission yesterday. Proposals to stage some other game for a similar cause here December 20 were not considered.

MAJESTICS BATTLE MYSTICS TOMORROW

LEADERSHIP OF GRID LOOP AT STAKE

By TOM BIRKS.

With first place in the independent gridiron conference at stake, the Majestic Radio aggregation will swing into action tomorrow afternoon at West View Park, opposing the Ambridge Mystics.

This will be Art Rooney's great chance to drop his Green and White-clad stars into the leadership of the loop for the first time. The Majestics are playing great football, a good defense, and since the acquisition of Levey and Glenn, a powerful attack, and the combination has been unbeaten since the opening game when Burns downed the Rooney team at Parnassus.

Ambridge will be a tough nut to crack. The Black and White looked great against McKeesport, and two bad breaks paved the way for the scoring of the touchdowns.

Should the Majestics win this game, it is going to add a lot to the contest at Rainbow Gardens Sunday when the Olympics meet the Majestics, and the title will be at stake. This game will attract the greatest crowd that ever watched a football game in the district. Four officials have been selected to handle the battle. Preisel will referee, Earl Cavanaugh will be the umpire, Leo Mackey will be linesman, and Carl Rebele field judge.

Two other games are scheduled in the conference. East Pittsburgh meets West View at the Park, and Burns goes to Ambridge to meet the Mystics. Tomorrow morning the Roddy Cole All-Stars will clash with Pleasant Valley Smilers at Pleasant Valley. The game will be called at 11 a. m.

Boo Boo Hoff Asks To Examine Gibson

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(AP.)—Max (Boo Boo) Hoff, of Philadelphia, asked the Supreme Court today to permit him to examine Billy Gibson, incompetent former manager of Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight boxing champion of the world, as the basis of his, Hoff's, $50,000 claim on Tunney's earnings.

Trial of the Hoff suit is to begin in about a week.

Hoff's attorneys held that the Court of Appeals has ruled that a person may be incompetent to transact business and yet be competent as a witness.

Long's Sport Comment

is about to be tackled, he passes the ball back to the quarterback, who is not past the scrimmage line. Quarterback passes the ball to end, who is clear for a touchdown. Is that play legal?

If the quarterback's pass was a forward one, it is not legal unless the passer at the time was at least five yards behind his line of scrimmage. A forward pass made from less than five yards behind the passer's scrimmage line is penalized by the loss of a down, the ball to be put in play at the spot of the preceding down.

Willis S. Kilmer

ALREADY A CHALLENGER has loomed up for Gallant Fox's money-winning turf record of $341,000. That mark looked good to stand for a long time, but there is now a possibility that it will be beaten. As Henry King figures it, Willis Sharpe Kilmer's horse, Sun Beau, winner of the Southern Maryland handicap at Bowie last Saturday, has a chance to earn more money than any other thoroughbred in the history of racing. The Bowie victory netted him $34,000 and brought his total up to $272,000, passing Blue Larkspur's mark of $270,000 and leaving only Gallant Fox and Zev ahead of him among American money winners. Whereas, Gallant Fox has been retired, Sun Beau's racing days, though he is 5 years old, are not yet over. After a short rest at Columbia, S. C., he will be shipped to New Orleans for two rich stakes there, and early next spring he will start in the $100,000 Agua Caliente handicap. By winning these three events, Sun Beau could pass the $400,000 mark.

PITT AND DUKES CLOSE SEASONS TOMORROW

Panthers have won the last eight games.

"The game is a toss-up," said Coach Jock Sutherland, of the Panthers. "We have lost some good men, and our reserve strength is not what it should be for a major game. Penn State is due for a better game than it has played on several occasions this year."

Bob Higgins, an old playing rival of Sutherland's and this year head coach of the Lions, would not commit himself, but said his team was in good shape and ready for a real fight.

Tomorrow's contest marks the final Turkey Day appearance here of the Lions and breaks up the second oldest Thanksgiving Day series. States has been playing here since 1903. Next year, Nebraska will meet the Panthers in the Stadium, with Pitt playing State College earlier in the campaign.

LINEUPS IN DOUBT

The starting lineups? Well, they are hard to figure. If everything is hunky-dory in the Panther camp, with all the boys on hand, Pitt likely will line up with Daily and Hirschberg at the ends; Quatse and Tully at the tackles; Hart Morris and Lewis at the guards and either Ralph Daugherty or Joe Tormey at center.

State has Kaplan and Martz or Edwards ready to go at the terminals. Shawley and McMillen, veterans, are the first choice tackles. Zorella and Curry will be at the guards and Bauman at center.

The starting backfield quartet will remain in doubt until game time. Unless French can start at quarterback, Livezey will get the job. Red Evans, a good punter and Capt. Deitrich are slated for halfback posts with the hard-hitting Lasisch at full. Joe Miller and young Snyder are the first string replacements.

The Dukes hope to close up their cruise, which has been more or less stormy, by recording a decisive win over Providence at Forbes Field in the morning.

West Virginia, Geneva and North Dakota have taken the measure of Elmer Layden's charges, which is exactly three more games than the Dukes lost all last season.

Providence does not boast a resting place with the undefeated elevens of the land, but the Rhode Islanders knocked off Rutgers. The team has lost the same number of games as the Dukes, having been beaten by St. John's College of Brooklyn, Holy Cross and the Coast Guard team.

O'TOOLE TO START

The Duquesne starting lineup will hold a few surprises for the boys. Coach Layden plans to use Jimmy O'Toole at quarter, in preference to either Bud Devenney or Red Sullivan. Tood will start at right half in place of Burns; Benedict will go at left half, and McCarthy will be in there at full.

On the line, Sepsi and Dudzak are to be at the terminals. Kirby and Kelleher are slated for the tackles, with Clark and Wynoski at the guards and Silverstein at center.

Providence will line up with Halloran and Jorn at the wings, Callahan and Shea at the tackles and Mathews and Minnella at the guards. Nawrocki will be over the ball at center, and the backfield will be composed of Blieler at quarter, Foster and Brady at the halves and DelVecchio at fullback.

The Tipoff

The annual Penn State Alumni smoker will be a social affair of this evening. Bill Fuhs, president of the local Penn State Club, is in charge of the affair, and is being assisted by Irish McElveen, W. G. Kerr, Ken McKnight, Eddie Sykes and Robert Cochrane. The affair will be held in the Urban Room at the William Penn Hotel.

Grove City and Thiel will wind up the tri-state season with their annual tussle at Grove City tomorrow. The teams have indulged in tie games for the past two years.

John A. Irwin, of the Union Trust Company, Charles A. Rowan, of the Westinghouse Airbrake and Joseph Marsh, prominent in local banking circles have joined the list of box seat holders for the Tech and Wash-Jeff benefit game here Saturday.

Maxie Hannum, who took a run out on a speech-making date he had yesterday noon when he found out that one or two of the boys had some nice hard rolls all soaked and ready for him, announced that the seat sale for the game Saturday had perked up no little.

With Hood, Reider, Heller and Baker in the starting backfield against State tomorrow, the Panthers can boast of a four-man passing backfield. Now the only thing the boys need is to open up with a heave or two, and at the right time.

Old Mint Becomes Prison

The old mint building at New Orleans is to be converted into a federal prison to house up to 300 prisoners. About $100,000 will be spent in remodeling.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Should Wife Stick to Son Or Gambling Hubby?

Supposing you'd married a gambler—

A man who spent all his own salary and every other cent he could beg, borrow or steal, on crap-shooting or "playing the ponies?" A man who, although his pay check is $32 a week, invariably has to borrow money to pay the landlord and the grocer—

Would you stick by him while you watched your little son's chance for an education go glimmering . . . and poverty and disgrace creeping closer every day?

Or would you get out and dig for yourself?

Ellen's sticking. And she thinks it's the "only thing to do!"

"Dear Miss Martin—

"I wonder what you'd do if you had a husband like mine. He's smart. Smart enough at 32 to be foreman on his job.

Continues to Gamble

"Yet he is dumb enough to throw away all of his salary of $92 a week on gambling, so that he invariably has to borrow money to pay our rent and living expenses.

"I married him at 18. At 19 I had an adorable baby boy, and now, after 11 years of marriage, my husband is still doing the same things he did as a boy. Shooting craps, or playing the horse races in every spare moment. For 16 years now, he has been doing that . . . gambling away every dollar he could lay his hands on and often lying and stealing to obtain it.

"Yet, if you remonstrate with him, he argues that he has always had bad luck . . . that he's never had the 'breaks.' He always thinks that some day, he'll win. But Miss Martin, if he won for the rest of his life, he never could win back the half of what he has lost.

"It's the same, week after week. Either dice or ponies get his money. But because I love him, even though he is no good, I stand by, watching poverty close down on us, and my little 10-year-old son's chances for an education, slipping away. And listening to people who tell me that 'it's my own fault for putting up with it.'

Blames Fate

"I worked for a couple of years. Then I realized that I was being a fool, because all my money was paying the rent and our bills, while he spent his, as usual, on 'chance.'

"So I quit work, and now I stay at home, cleaning my house, cooking good hot meals for him, and always hoping and praying that he will change some day.

"And in spite of his faults, and of what people say, if he lives for a hundred years, I will still be here, waiting for him to come home.

"I know there is nothing I can do to change him. I have talked to him, and tried to get him to be different, ever since we were married. But it does no good. It seems as if he just simply was built that way, and can't be any different. But it's a terrible thing. Think what he could have been . . . what he could have had if he didn't have that terrible fever for trying his luck on everything with a chance in it.

"But he never seems to be able to realize that—or to care. He blames it all on fate.

"Isn't there some way to stop gambling? To put it out of his reach? I know there are thousands like him. And what a blessing it would be, if there were some way to protect them from themselves! But so long as there isn't, I guess the only thing the rest of us can do is to stand by and be patient. That's what I am doing, anyway. But it's hard sometimes.

"Thank you for listening to my story. I know that by telling it, I can't change things. But it has taken a load off my heart, and that's a lot.

"ELLEN."

So you'll "be waiting for him," even if he keeps on playing 'em for another hundred years? And it's quite evident that you think you deserve a hand and a couple sweet kisses for your devotion and loyalty.

Well, since you're so strong on loyalty, how about trying a little of it on that son of yours?

How About Boy?

Your husband is a grown man and was when you married him. You can't change him, and you aren't, after all, responsible for him. But you are responsible for that boy. You brought him into the world. You hung that kind of a dad around his innocent neck. And now because you prefer lying around and being a martyr to getting out and hustling, you're letting that baby's life be wrecked.

Women like you make me sick! You call your feeling for this man "love" and "loyalty" . . . in reality, it's as vicious a form of addiction as booze or hop. You hang around because you're too lazy and cowardly to get out—and you're using your "duty as a wife" to camouflage your outrageous disregard of your duty as a mother.

A woman who does that in the name of "wifehood" is as shameless as any savage girl who smirks while "her man" hands her a shiner! In fact, I'm thinking the trollop is the more respectable citizen. She only gets her eye smashed. You're letting your boy's life be smashed.

That's just a little of what I think. And now I'm inviting the rest to hop in. How does Ellen stack up with you, partner? Do you think she's living in a Big Way—or being a plain Slacker?

You've got opinions. Let's have 'em!

By FAY KING

Youth so often sighs for the finery and sophistication of older women.

While these are trying so hard to be like her, she is trying so hard to be like them.

What a pity to waste the precious years of youth in the dim smoke-laden dens of night-life.

In such an atmosphere the natural beauty of youth seems insignificant beside the shrewd, studied sophistication of artificiality which is much more suited to such surroundings.

Youth alone can dance out into the glorious morning sunlight and win a cold sober world with her untarnished charm.

Her place is in the sunshine, not nightlight.

Madge Worries About Position

Before I could frame my perfunctory reply to Philip Veritzen's murmured compliment concerning the orchids of the centerpiece he had provided for the dinner he was giving us, he spoke to Lillian deferentially.

"Will you act as my hostess, Lillian?" he asked, indicating the seat opposite him.

"That's one of my very best stunts," she said, with a laughing little moue at him, and he smilingly put me at his right hand, Mary at his left, while Harry Underwood took the place between Lillian and me and young Mr. Cameron slid into place at Lillian's right, with Mary upon his other side.

We had supposed the affair to be a most informal little dinner, the result of a sudden whim of the great producer, but he was investing it with as much punctiliousness as if we were all in evening dress and had been bidden to the most formal of feasts. That he was emphasizing my position as guest of honor troubled me as much as did the query concerning the reason for his obvious encouragement of Colin Cameron's attentions to Mary. But I tried to let no hint of my disquiet appear in my response to his comment concerning the orchids.

"They are so beautiful," I said, "that it does not matter whether they are anyone's favorite blooms."

"Then they are not yours?" he countered quickly, and there was in his voice the chagrin of a spoiled boy suddenly thwarted in a whim.

I shook my head, unwilling to forswear the humbler blossoms which I always have loved best. Of course, the English violets which Dicky has brought to me on every anniversary of our wedding day and upon other holiday occasions hold first place in my heart, but the lilies and wild roses of my childhood were my first love, and I never see them without a thrill of love and longing for that lost childhood. I have wondered guiltily sometimes whether the memory of a danger-fraught, war-time June night when I walked with Hugh Grantland along a country road bordered with wild roses in full bloom had invested the delicate, fragrant blossoms with any additional glamor.

"They were my mother's favorite," Hugh Grantland had whispered, "and you—are so like them."

He had not presumed farther—that wonderful friend, the most faithful, the most unselfish I have ever known. But often his words with the tone accompanying them come back to me, enfold me, as it were, with the assurance of an undying, reverent care.

How different, I thought resentfully, was Hugh Grantland's attitude from that of the man bending toward me with tempery chagrin in his face and voice. Though I knew that Hugh had loved me long and hopelessly, he never had embarrassed me by pressing that knowledge upon me. But Philip Veritzen, beneath his mask of comradeship, was predatory, avid.

"I must confess to very humble tastes, I am afraid," I said. "Violets, lilacs, wild roses. I had a small town childhood, you must remember."

"I doubt that I could manage lilacs without an advance order. But I can replace those with violets in a very few minutes if you will excuse me while I speak to the manager."

He meant it. I saw that, and realized that theatricalism, his strongest trait, was rampant within him. He was bent upon making the grand gesture of catering to my taste in flowers regardless of the trouble and expense involved in substituting a violet centerpiece for the exquisite orchid one now fracing the table.

But I was equally bent upon having no such ridiculous cene foisted upon me, and I leaned toward him with my hand laid as if playfully upon his arm, a gesture which effectively prevented him from rising.

"If you dare take those orchids away from this table," I said with laughing eyes and lips, but in low meaningful tones, "I warn you that I shall snatch them into my arms and run away with them. They are the last word in loveliness. Please be content with that."

He hesitated a long second while from the corner of my eye I watched a waiter advancing with the first course of the dinner. Then just before the man reached us my employer lifted my hand from his arm, pressing it gently as he laid it in my lap.

"As you wish, of course, my lady," he said, and then the waiter began serving us the first course of a dinner which Philip Veritzen evidently had planned with much care. He laid before us plates bearing little sausage-shaped rolls of some unknown foodstuff wrapped and completely hidden in grapevine leaves and moistened with something resembling French dressing. I am frankly hesitant over unknown foreign dishes, but I guessed that our host's keen eyes were watching me, and, with an unworthy but natural fear of gaucherie, I took up my fork and attacked the mysterious concoction wrapped in vine leaves.

Household Hints

Prepare the gelatine dessert the first thing in the morning and then you will be certain that it will be firm.

The fire box of the range should never be more than three-quarters full or it will check the draft, consume large quantities of coal and waste heat.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Lovers and Husbands.

Verily, my Daughter, not always doth the Perfect Lover become the Ideal Husband; yet, in novels and a woman's dreams are the two as one.

* * *

For a woman in love regardeth a man through rose-colored glasses; but, after marriage, she seeth him in the cold north-light of reality. And, even on her wedding day, doth her first illusion drop from her.

Behold, every woman seeketh a Prince Charming.

But, alas, when she hath found him and annexed him, he becometh but a creature of common clay, who sleepeth with his mouth open, weareth holes in his socks, and is fussy concerning the coddling of his eggs and the crispness of his bacon.

She dreameth of a Lochinvar.

But, lo, he that was bolder than a lion in his love-making, trembleth at the thought of the wedding. And his bride weepeth to discover that it requireth six ushers to "brace him up" and get him to the altar. He is SO shy!

Yet, when they are wedded, he that appeared all vigor and brute force, hath not the energy to clean his own safety-razor and lacketh the strength to lift his own shoes. And he that would have faced the fire of machine-guns for her sake refuseth to go down and argue with the butcher about the cut of beef.

He that was a Conquering Hero upon the football field hath suddenly grown too weak to tackle the lawn-mower and too enervated to wash the car.

And he that talked lightly of shooting Big Game in the jungles, is laid low by a cold in the head, feareth to eat hot mince pie, and trembleth lest he waken the baby.

Yea, he that was invincible in battle and irresistible in love, now waxeth more capricious than a pet Angora in his diet, and more languid than a prima donna, on Sunday mornings.

Horoscopes

Thursday, November 27

A day of pleasure, merriment, extravagance and indulgence is read from the dominant positions of the planets, both mutually and by lunar transit. While the keynote is one of festivity and heightened holiday spirit, yet there is need for discreet personal behavior and definite restraint in the matter of self-indulgence. Friction and inharmony might easily arise in social, domestic or romantic associations.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of pronounced proclivity and incentive to extravagance and self-indulgence, with possibly personal affairs interfering and jeopardizing the business interests.

A child born on this day should be kindly, popular, socially active and ambitious.

Friday, November 28

A state of chaos and confusion may be expected from the powerful influence of Neptune, ruling with malefic disposition both by lunar and solar aspect It is a sign of subterfuge, sinister undermining and mysterious currents, which may manifest in employment and in connection with large corporations or secret societies.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which they may be called on to circumvent deceit, treachery and subtlety, either in employment or in connection with combines, mergers or secret bodies, a precarious situation, but somewhat negatived by a good opening involving change and the disposition toward perseverance and hard work. In the end, with precaution, patience and resolution may win.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Duties of the Dance Escort

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Will you please inform me about this rather embarrassing question of etiquette? When attending a dance such as a club dance or a college prom, or a parish dance, what is the proper way to arrange for other partners for the girl? Does or should she expect to dance with others than her escort?

2. Could you suggest some sort of rules or guides to go by in the matter of the number of "exchanged" dances, and some form to use in asking for them?

An Admirer of Your Common Sense in Matters of Etiquette.

1. Yes, the girl would naturally wish to dance with other partners. Her partner for the evening sees that other partners are presented to her.

2. The man who invites the girl to the dance takes as part of his social responsibility the introduction of other men to his partner. Since the point of a dance is to dance—usually—when a man is presented to a girl he usually invites her to dance.

An Impersonal Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When I was a little girl in school I took a great fancy to my third grade teacher. I have just met her recently after about eight years, and she very kindly asked me to visit her. Do you think it would be correct for me to take a gift to her?

READER.

Yes. Take with you, when you go for your visit, some gift that might be generally termed impersonal, a book, a box of candy, a beautiful linen handkerchief. Then, when you write your bread and butter letter, after your visit, send her some gift that will suggest itself to you during your visit.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Thanksgiving

Tomorrow is Thanksgiving Day. No matter what trials beset us on other days, we should set them aside. It is our bounden duty to give thanks to Almighty God for the blessings He has bestowed upon us.

DR COPELAND

Let us not think about present day troubles so far as they affect us. Rather let us puzzle ourselves over what we can do to help others. You may be on part-time employment. Perhaps you have no work at all. For any and all these things you have my sympathy.

But, my friend, if you have health, sound teeth and vigorous body, you can be happy in spite of your financial distress. The possession of health is more important than the dividend or the pay envelope.

We must be at the bottom of the business depression. Certainly it won't be long before the wheels are spinning and this critical time shall be no more than a memory. The spirit of optimism should be in our hearts on Thanksgiving Day.

If you are unemployed spend this period of forced idleness in building up your health, then these dark days may prove a blessing. If you are forced to eat the simplest, the plainest foods, that won't hurt you. It is good for you to do this. It would be better if you did it when money is flush.

In this world there are thousands, millions, of blind, deaf, rheumatic bed-ridden, insane and feeble-minded persons. You are not blind or otherwise helpless. You have a good brain and a clear mind. Be thankful for these blessings, worth far more to you than the wealth of Rockefeller.

This should be a day when each of us tries to find somebody worse off than we are. If we do something for such, our own skies will clear and happiness will sing in our hearts.

"For as he thinketh in his heart so is he," Solomon said. Let us think happiness, prosperity, the common welfare, and good will to men. When our thoughts are right, we are on the way to help the material world to better standards, a better economic system, a better understanding of our fellow men. Then we will be better men and women, better boys and girls.

Let us make Thanksgiving Day a day of praise for what we have and what we hope for. Let us not lament over what we have not, nor over what might have been. God's in His heaven still!

Answer to Health Questions

W. P. M. Q.—What can be done about nervous exhaustion?

A.—Complete rest and the best of nourishing foods are advisable. Deep breathing and lots of fresh air and sunshine are important. However you should be under the care of a physician who will prescribe the suitable medical treatment.

Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Powder should not match the coloring of the skin surface exactly; it should be a slightly darker tone. There are still misguided women who stick to white powder, which gives the woman who uses it the insipid pallor of a marshmallow. It is a mistake.

There are new exercises that produce the same effect as rowing. They pull down fat arms, tighten up sagging tummy muscles. These contrivances fold up and go into suit cases. They afford activity for the larger muscles of the body those of the torso where exercise is needed for the proper functioning of the digestive organs.

coughs and SORE THROAT

Every few hours, place a little Vicks on the tongue and let it trickle slowly down the throat as it melts.

When there is much irritation or coughing, stronger vapor action will be helpful. Melt a teaspoonful of Vicks in boiling water and inhale the steaming vapors for several minutes.

At bedtime, rub Vicks vigorously over throat and chest and cover with warm flannel. Relief is two-fold: by stimulation through the skin, Vicks draws out the soreness, like a plaster; at the same time, its medicated vapors, released by the body-heat, are inhaled direct to the irritated air-passages.

Lambert Company Keeps Up Volume and Profits Despite Depression Era

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—John L. Johnston, president of the Lambert Company, looks upon the business depression as an opportunity for solidifying the consumer good will and trade leadership of his company.

Accordingly, instead of following the defeatist policy of folding up tents and running away until the business storm abates, Mr. Johnston and his associates have struck out more boldly than ever. Despite the preconceptions that ordinarily come from long experience as a banker—and Mr. Johnston was a banker until he took charge of this pharmaceutical company three years ago—Mr. Johnston is a bull on advertising, especially newspaper and magazine advertising. Instead of cutting down on advertising in order to improve the immediate profits exhibit of his company, Mr. Johnston, whose company will have spent just under $5,000,000 on advertising this year, increased the advertising appropriation of his company 4 or 5 per cent in 1930 over 1929.

Mr. Rukeyser

In explaining how, in the face of adverse economic conditions, his company had been able to keep up volume and profits within hailing distance of the 1929 peak, Mr. Johnston stressed the constructive value of advertising in a depression year. In the first place, he said, with general advertising lineage substantially down, there is less competition for the attention of the reader. Accordingly, Mr. Johnston, who was long a commercial banker in St. Louis, feels that per dollar of expenditure, scientific advertising is likely to get a better yield in an off year in attention value and in ultimate results. Secondly, Mr. Johnston feels that in a depressed period, with much unemployment, people have more time to read publications, and, even if they do not respond with immediate purchases, they are impressed with an advertising story and buy when they can.

Feeling that the business of his company is on the verge of expansion, Mr. Johnston has especially added to the advertising and sales pressure in the final quarter of this year—the current period.

Reported earnings of the company for the first nine months were only slightly below the 1929 level, equaling $7.57 per share, compared with $7.70 a year ago. Mr. Johnston indicated that the company right up to this time has been fully earning its present dividend.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Market Unsettled — Local Market Narrow

MARKET DROPS, CLIMBS AND DIPS AGAIN

Wavering Price Movement Marks Dull Pre-Holiday Trading; Pivotals Strong

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(AP.)—Uncertainty over the effects of Thanksgiving Day upon the digestion of a none too robust stock market appeared in a wavering price movement today.

The list sagged 1 to 4 points during the early trading, recovered to show gains of a point or so here and there by midday, and turned downward again in the afternoon. Trading was extremely dull, and most of the so-called pivotal stocks showed resistance to selling pressure.

The market appeared to be governed largely by the pre-holiday trends, but business and trade news was not in the main of a character to inspire fresh buying. Freight car loadings, as reported for the latest week, showed a drop of 52,150 cars. Iron Age placed steel production for the past week at 41 per cent of capacity, against 43 in the preceding week.

The reduction in American Locomotive's dividend from $2 to $4, after the cut earlier in the year from $8 to $4, had little effect upon that stock, but rather caused selling of the shares of parent company. The cut in Standard Brands' quarterly payment from 37½ cents to 30 cents was explained by the management as placing the rate on an extremely conservative basis, since October was the best month in the company's brief history.

Along with strength of Sears Roebuck, the rumor of merger negotiations with Montgomery Ward was revived.

The weekly statistics from the petroleum industry showed a drop in gasoline stocks of 731,000 barrels, and the lowest crude output in four years. Oil shares were mostly under pressure.

Credit was a little firmer. Call money went no lower than 1½ per cent in the outside market, against 1 per cent lately. The official rate held at 2. Federal funds, or member bank balances with the Federal Reserve, were in greater demand, with some banks bidding 1½ to 1¾ per cent, as compared with less than 1 per cent recently.

THE PRODUCE MARKET

The demand for fruit and vegetables was dull today at the wholesale produce markets in Pittsburgh. There were no changes in quotations.

The poultry markets rested firm, demand fair, supply nominal with slight changes in quotations.

The butter, egg and cheese markets remained firm, demand good, supply adequate with few changes in quotations.

Car lot supplies were nominal with 246 cars on track. Arrivals included 2 cars cabbage, 1 grapefruit, 2 grapes, 1 lemons, 1 lettuce, 1 onions, 4 oranges, 5 pears, 2 pears, 2 peppers, 2 spinach, 2 potatoes and 1 tomatoes.

Stock Exchange Topics

Chesapeake and Ohio Net Subject of Favorable Comment Lately

The manner in which earnings of Chesapeake and Ohio have been holding up as contrasted with returns of most other roads has been the subject of much favorable discussion lately. Gross in the 10 months ended with October was only about $10,000,000 under the record rate of last year, and stood well above the same periods for both 1928 and 1927 though figures for the two last mentioned years did not include returns of the Hocking Valley. Net operating income for the 10 months stood at $20,851,634 or only about $1,500,000 less than in the same period of the previous year. Profits after fixed charges and federal taxes were equivalent to about $3.75 a share on the common for the 10 months ended with October, compared with a balance of about $4 in the corresponding period of 1929.

Accordint to reports current in New York, the Traction Company officials and municipal authorities are presently much nearer agreement on a knock-down price for the properties than they have been at any time since the conferences began. Strength in the traction shares yesterday was looked upon as a reflection of the progress which is being made in the direction of a settlement. The story going the rounds had it that the bartering had reached a stage where the difference between the figures of the city and those of traction people were only about $10,000,000 apart. Such a condition would seem to prezage early announcement on the matter.

As expected, directors of Loew's Inc. voted an extra dividend of $1 a share at their meeting. The recent rise in the stock, however, had apparently discounted this special action and there was considerable profit-taking yesterday on the theory that the "good news" was out for the time being. The principal beneficiary of the extra dividend to be paid will be the Fox Film Corporation, which holds 660,900 shares of Loew's common stock, representing controlling interest. This stock was transferred last April from the Fox Theaters Corporation to Fox Film coincident with the acquisition of control of the latter company by General Theaters, Inc.

Some say the big interests, that is many of them, got a jump ahead of the general public in tax selling by disposing of stocks in September and October. The peak of the rise at that time was on September 10, and from that date to November 10, Dow-Jones industrial averages were off 73.49 points and railroad averages 28.79 points. The slump has given tax sellers a rare opportunity to buy back. Even today, those who sold stocks in September and the greater part of October can buy back at prices far below the levels at which they sold.

Many traders continue to sell General Electric short on the theory that the ratio of selling price to earnings per share is too high. But earnings of G. E. have never justified its selling price. The stock for the last quarter of a century has been selling most of the time more on its future than on present earnings. We are in an electrical age and it is hard to say what G. E. will be selling for 10 years from now if it gets its share of the increased business.

Important houses which have been identified with Standard Oil stocks generally insist that the decline of approximately 50 per cent in the market value of Chesebrough has been unwarranted. They point out that while earnings for the current year may show a recession from those of preceding periods, because of business conditions, the effect has been comparatively negligible. In some quarters, it is the belief that forced liquidation was responsible for part of the decline, as it is said that no change has taken place in the company's affairs to justify the intermittent heavy selling.

New York City Gets Short Term Loan

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—J. P. Morgan & Co., Chase Securities Corporation and Barr Bros. & Co., Inc., have extended a $60,000,000 short-term 2¼ per cent loan to New York City.

Salisbury Heads New Commerce Section

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Creation of a new section in the Commerce Department to aid in developing a broader and more general understanding of the problems affecting industrial selling, as contrasted with consumer-good marketing, was announced today by Director William L. Cooper, of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. G. Reed Salisbury, Rochester, N. Y., was selected to head the section.

Cooper said:

"Present data are inadequate to enable distributors to analyze industrial markets efficiently. The movement of industrial goods—the materials that go into industry, and those that are used by the factories themselves—represents a volume of business estimated at $35,000,000,000 annually."

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Trading in today's pre-holiday curb market was confined to a comparatively narrow list of issues which moved irregularly.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(AP.)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded in (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

STEEL PRICES FIRMING UP

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—The Iron Age in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade tomorrow will say:

Some further expansion in demand from the railroads and the automobile industry and a piling up of construction projects, particularly public undertakings, have heightened the hope of the iron and steel trade and have added force to current efforts to stabilize prices.

Steel production is increasingly irregular, with the average for the country down to 41 per cent, compared with 43 per cent a week ago, and additional weakness has cropped out in the scrap market, but the industry is reconciled to another month of low activity and is more confident in its predictions of an upturn in the new year.

It is realized that present pressure to keep down inventories, although precluding an immediate expansion of business, will be followed by more liberal specifications for stock in January. It is appreciated also that many construction and industrial programs now being launched cannot mature until next year, but there is general agreement that improvement is definitely in prospect.

The increasing operations of the Chevrolet Motor Company and other makers bringing out new models will tend to offset expected year-end suspension by the rest of the motor car industry.

Structural awards for the week, at 43,000 tons, are the largest since late in October.

By B. C. FORBES

BUSINESS AT LAST is headed upwards. At least, that is what the stock market has been saying during the last two weeks.

The market's action lately has been more genuinely reassuring than at any earlier stage this year. One of its best features is its dullness. Another is its tendency to advance when left alone by powerful operators. For every three dollars brokers were borrowing a little over a year ago, they are now borrowing only one. Stocks are losing steadily absorbed by ultimate consumers, little and big. Transfer offices, where securities are sent to be recorded in the names of their new possessors, are extremely busy. Some large corporations report a 25 per cent increase, or even more, during the current year.

Mr. Forbes.

Let the stock market continue to stay firm and quiet for a little longer, without fireworks by either bulls or bears, and the national attitude towards the holiday season and towards 1931 prospects will undergo a happy change. There is no reason, apart from possible onslaughts by big bears, why securities should not improve in market value.

NOW THAT A "billion dollar merger" has been arranged to take care of four New York banks, plain speaking can be indulged in.

The fact is that this merger has cured a condition which has long created uneasiness in the highest and most conservative financial circles in America. Not one of the four institutions was a member of the New York Clearing House, an association backed by the best banks in the city and functioning as a vigilant police force, so to speak, to delve into the actual condition of each of its member banks. Federal and state bank examiners often are hoodwinked. The New York Clearing House isn't easily bamboozled. The growth of one or two of the merging banks has been more rapid than solid. Their heads had Napoleonic ambitions but not equally Napoleonic brains.

There have been times during the last 12 months when alarm was felt lest trouble would break out.

J. Herbert Case, who succeeded Gates W. McGarrah as chairman of the Board of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and federal reserve agent, heads the new banking giant. Case is chiefly distinguished for two outstanding qualities, his character and his conservatism. He has earned and enjoyed the confidence of the most influential financial powers in the metropolis. No wiser selection could have been made. His administration of the institution will cause no worry in responsible circles.

In my humble opinion, the consolidating of the Manufacturers Trust Company, the Public National Bank, the Bank of United States and the International Trust Company will induce the financial powers that be to view the whole situation more confidently.

CHILDS RESTAURANTS began advertising a $1 dinner some five weeks ago. So effective has the advertising proved that the serving of a million of these dinners a year is already in sight. Little wonder F. C. Lane, the company's advertising manager, talks of the "productiveness of newspaper advertising."

J. P. MORGAN yesterday received what probably was to him the most acceptable honor of his whole life: The venerable Oxford University of England conferred on him its highest honorary degree, doctor of civil laws.

The present J. P. Morgan is intensely interested in rare manuscripts and books and works of art and other such likely things which appeal so irresistibly to his father. Mr. Morgan has likewise inherited his grandfather's and father's love of English life. For a large part of every year he leads the quiet, dignified life of a British squire. As he grows older—Mr. Morgan is now 63—he finds more and more satisfaction, not in breathless pursuit of money making ventures, but in the cultural things of life and, even more especially, in cultivating friendships and friendliness. He has undergone something of a mental transformation in the last dozen years. Even the ship news reporters have noted how he has dropped his former brusqueness.

FRANCES PERKINS, state industrial commissioner of New York, a live wire, is sponsoring a movement to provide interest-free loans to unemployed. One corporation has already successfully tried the plan of granting loans to laid-off workers whom it expects to re-employ. Can other states evolve ways and means to make such loans? Loans, rather than charity, would have the self-respect of many.

Truscon Steel Gets Pacific Coast Firm

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 26.—Truscon Steel Company's Pacific Coast branch has taken over the Pacific Coast operation of Genfire Steel Company, which has specialized in the sale of such products as metal lath, standard sash, etc. In the future Genfire Steel will operate as the Pacific Coast Division of Truscon Steel Company under H. B. Miller, vice president.

Drought Helps to Cut Wheat Surplus

By GEORGE B. SNYDER.

REDUCED CROPS OF CORN and other farm products used for feed offer a solution of the surplus wheat problem. But there is still no way in sight for the Grain Stabilization Corporation to liquidate its enormous holdings of wheat except at a loss.

Thomas D. Campbell, world's largest wheat farmer, of Hardin, Mont., recently assembled some interesting facts about the nation's agricultural situation. He declared that the year's corn crop is about 700,000,000 bushels short as a result of the drought. The shortage of other feed crops is equivalent to about 300,000,000 more bushels of corn as nearly as the Department of Agriculture can estimate.

He stated that this leaves a total shortage of feed of about 1,000,000,000 bushels as compared to a surplus of wheat of about 350,000,000 bushels. At present prices wheat can be economically fed to stock. The Department of Agriculture has placed the amount of wheat to be used for this purpose at about 162,000,000 bushels, which will make a substantial hole in the surplus.

Position Improved

IT IS BECOMING quite evident that even with the elimination of the United States as a factor in the export market for wheat, the close of the present crop year on July 1, 1931, will see a pronounced improvement in the statistical position of wheat in this country.

The estimates of the reduction in stocks vary widely. H. C Donovan, crop expert for Logan & Bryan, believes that the carry-over of wheat in this country will be reduced from 275,000,000 bushels at the end of the last crop year to 168,000,000 bushels at the end of the present crop year. This compares with an estimate of a carry-over of 190,000,000 bushels made in this column last Sunday.

Regardless of how closely these estimates will come to actual conditions, it seems very certain that elevators of the United States will be less crammed with wheat next year than they were last summer.

World Situation

DONOVAN ALSO PREDICTS that the world carry-over of wheat will be reduced to some extent. At the end of the last crop year stocks stood at 505,000,000 bushels. He believes that they will be cut to 462,000,000 during the present crop year. This estimate of world condition is, of course, likely to be vastly changed by carying conditions between the present time and next July.

While wheat conditions, from the standpoint of the farmer, seem to be on the mend, the Grain Stabilization Corporation still has over 100,000,000 bushels of wheat on its hands. It has paid over $1 a bushel for a large part of this and the average price is substantially higher than the present market.

If this government organization disposes of some of its holdings for feed purposes, it will be taking a very substantial loss. The cost of its operations will be exceptionally large in comparison to the help it has given the farmer which, up to the present time, has been slight. On the other hand, if the price of wheat advances to a great enough extent to permit the Grain Stabilization Corporation to break even, wheat will cease to be a profitable substitute for corn as a feed and domestic consumption will not be great enough to cut down stocks. If the wheat is held until world market conditions improve prices will have to reach higher levels than the average paid by the corporation since it has been spending nearly a cent a bushel for storing wheat each month.

Catalina Island Tournament Off

AVALON, Ca[illegible] CATALINA ISLAND, Cal., Nov. 26.—(AP.)—The annual Catalina Island $7,500 open golf tournament scheduled for December [illegible] to 14 was cancelled last night by William Wrigley, Jr., because of "lack of entries, both among contending professionals and followers of the game and recent dissension in the ranks of the players."

Arnold Horween Not To Return to Harvard

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—(AP.)—Arnold Horween today insisted that he was through with active football and would not return again as coach at Harvard.

"No, I won't go back to Harvard next year," he said. "I've been playing hookey from our leather business long enough to coach. I must go on here. I've been saying that every year, of course, but they've always asked me to come back, although it was understood at the start that I was to coach for only a year or two."

Almgren Winner In Chess Tourney

S. Almgren increased his lead in the Western Pennsylvania championship chess tournament last night when he defeated Kalman Erdeky at the Pittsburgh Chess and Bridge Club.

Almgren has won three matches while S. Emery and G. Williams each have won one game without suffering defeat.

GENE BALDONI LOSES

GANGSTER GIRL -:- -:- By Jack Lait

CHAPTER XVIII.

As his dying vassal, Boo Boo Kurtz, blurted out the news of the dope raid and tumbled senseless on the dirty, sawdust sprinkled floor, Cyclone Tim McClosky growled deep and throaty—but didn't change his position at the bar. He nodded to the bartender, who quickly and nervously spun out the bottle of the blistering nepenthes of a hell that held no terror for Tim.

The Cyclone never stooped to a chaser, and now he gulped off three slugs of the villainous liquor in thirty seconds. He jerked his huge bulk into an upright position tweaked the beak of his cap down over his lowering face, pointed in passing to the prone figure of Kurtz and strode through the door.

All the hot hatred which sizzled in his soul against Biff Glasson, a malice which had grown into a raging religion from their first youthful rivalry on the waterfront now spurted the blood of vengeful urge tearing through his veins like vitriol.

Across the street he stomped into a dingy little poolroom—a blind for a hundred nefarious and devious deviltries. In the dim, smoke-solid air a half dozen men pulled themselves up as he entered.

"Round up the mob an hustle 'em over to Cherry street," he ordered, stalking to the rear and into another room. He dialed an antiquated safe and by the handsful he flung out weapons—gats, knives, blackjacks, even lead pipes on which still clung dark and ominous spotches—blood.

Gangs Collide

Cyclone Tim's order crackled like a rookery fire through the district; in groups and singly his mobsters crawled from their dark holes and hurried into the poolroom. In a few minutes he had armed a dozen men, and Cyclone Tim, at their head started toward Cherry street.

When he came in sight of the corner and glommed the three automobiles parked there, he barked the sharp, curt order to charge:

"Kill every damn one o' de lice!"

With no battlecry or peep of warning, the dozen men swarmed at the cars. The River Rats had the strategical advantage of surprise and the ten men guarding that end of the Cherry street block, although tensely alert, were taken unaware. The River Rats let loose a deadly fire as they ran, and the Bridge Twisters tumbled out of the cars.

Cyclone Tim plunged into a doorway as a murderous machine-gun fire from the rear of the truck swept the narrow passage. The truck was loaded with dope, and under the protection of the typewriter it got off with a terrific grinding of gears and demoniacal grumbling of racing engines.

"Dey copped de dope, damn 'em," Tim cursed, as he hugged the doorway, "but I'll cop Glasson!"

Leaders Meet

Passion for revenge was now stronger in his hot heart than avarice or pursuit of worldly property.

The Lewis-gun fire abruptly stopped. The truck had vanished. Then, from doorways, from behind steps and from around the corners swarmed the rival gangsters. The dingy little street became the scene of a bestial battle.

As the rat-tat-tat ended and the combatants ran at each other with gats, brass knuckles, clubs, rocks and every handy form of weapon, a thousand heads popped out of the tenement house windows on both sides. Then the heads disappeared, and out of the windows came pots and pans, bricks and chairs and oaths and even hot water and ashes. But the gangsters carried on grimly heedless of the rest of the world though now and then one was knocked cold by some domestic implement, or another was blinded by the ashes and hot water and left to the mercy of his enemy.

Cyclone Tim's men were woefully outnumbered, but as the fight progressed others of his gangsters, who had heard the scrap or of the scrap came running into the block—toughs from the waterfront.

"Come on! you dirty rat—Biff Glasson I'm out fer yer gizzards—you yeller left-handed monkey."

Finally, in the middle of the block, he spotted the mighty Glasson. With a yell he bounded forward. For a moment the blindness of an ungodly vindictiveness overcame him, and he began cutting at everybody with his murderous fish knife, whetted down to a razor-edge, and thrashing out in frenzied fury with his brass-knuckled fist in a drive to get at his enemy.

Suddenly the two desperados found themselves face to face in a small cleared arena for the other gangsters on both sides had long awaited this opportunity to witness the inevitable battle to the finish between the two giants.

Cyclone Tim semi-circled his head like a wounded bull and crouched his body for the charge. Blood and dirt and sweat slimed his scowling face.

Biff Glasson was his equal and Cyclone Tim knew in his heart that he was. Just as muscular and sinewy and nimble and murderous. He held in his left hand a blunt, short club and in his right a gleaming dirk.

For the shortest instant the two stood facing each other, each waiting for the other to dare the first move. And in that instant there flashed back through the slow-moving brain of Cyclone Tim their first battle, when they had stood like this as kids, each daring the other to cross the line. That fight had been with bare fists and each had claimed the victory. And there had been many more fights during the years to follow, and neither had ever stopped or been stopped. It was still even.

But now—

End of Feud

"Come on, you lousy mugg!" snarled Cyclone Tim, grinding his teeth.

Biff Glasson, like a streak, swept out with his stick. There was a crack as the hardened wood came down on the Cyclone's solid skull. But he shook off the effects and, with a mighty parabola of his knuckled fist he caught Biff Glasson on the point of the chin. Biff staggered back but held his balance, and the two titans rushed in on each other.

The fighting around them had momentarily stopped. Both the River Rats and the Bridge Twisters forgot for the instant their ancient red-stained hatred as their two idols began to slash and jab and smash and rip. Now they were close in, now one staggered back.

With a terrific lunge, Cyclone Tim drove his knife deep into the belly of his rival—and in that lunge he ran his vitals into the long, sharp dirk of the other. Then both men staggered back a step and each tried to summon the strength for a fresh attack, but each reeled, stumbled and fell. Their bodies touched each other.

"S'long Biff. Damn you!"

"S'long, Tim. May you roast in hell!"

They were still even.

And then came the piercing blasts of the police reserve sirens as a hundred cops and dicks raced in from both ends of the block.

DAILY TRUE STORY -:- -:- Father Consents

Carl Dwight met Flo Smith at the home of Prof. Larkin, and Carl promptly discovered strange symptoms which, being an honest young man, he admitted to himself must mean that he was in love with the cute little brown-haired Flo.

Carl was taking a post-graduate course at his Alma Mater. Flo was the guest of Hattie Larkin, the professor's daughter. The professor had admired Carl and often had him at his home as a guest.

Not that Prof. Larkin hoped Carl and his daughter would make a match of it, for Hattie was already engaged to a most acceptable young man. It was just that the professor had confidence Carl would amount to a great deal in life.

The professor seemed startled. "Carl shouldn't burden himself with a wife for some years yet," he said.

"Now, isn't that like a man—as if a wife were a burden!"

Hattie paused and stared out of the window. It was a bright moonlight night. Carl had taken Flo downtown to a concert and was just bringing her back.

"He's kissing her," Hattie said.

"I suspected as much," her father answered dryly.

"Oh dear, I won't be able to see you for a whole month. I am going out to Oregon to bring my aunt home to live with us!"

"Isn't it, though!"

Then they said "good night" some more and the conversation was restricted to personal matters entirely, such as the extent and quality of their love for each other and similar all-important things.

Flo finished her visit and started for Oregon.

Carl completed his post-graduate studies and went to the country to visit his folks.

Father Angry

He found they very much upset. They had been away on a brief visit, leaving the hired man to attend to the few necessary things about the small farm. When they returned they found glaring 24-sheet posters pasted on three sides of their barn more posters on the other farm buildings. These glaring posters set forth the merits of various things, from soap to tires.

Carl's father, usually mild mannered, was ready to go right out and fight the entire Star Advertising Company. He had learned from the imprint in the corners of the posters that this company was responsible.

"After I get the danged things scraped off, Carl," the old man said, "then I'll have to have the buildings repainted. The labor and paint and things will cost me a couple hundred dollars. I'm going to sue them!"

"I'll look up the head of the company in New York and put it up to them. Perhaps, rather than be sued, he will send men out to remove these and do the painting," Carl told his father.

When Carl went back to his rooms in the city and had finished some rush proof-reading on his newest novel, he looked up the Star Advertising Company and went to the offices. He was surprised and somewhat impressed. The concern occupied a floor in a large building and the offices seemed to fairly breathe prosperity.

He asked for the head of the outdoor advertising.

"It's all outdoor advertising," the young man explained, "and the head is the president. What is your name and your business?"

Carl gave him his name and said his business was concerning outdoor advertising, which was quite true, so far as the posters on his father's farm building were concerned.

Talks With Official

Carl was ushered through a door marked PRESIDENT.

Carl was quite polite as the prosperous appearing man asked him to be brief.

In a few words he explained his errand.

"Not responsible for where our men put up the advertising—see them," he said, gruffly.

"Your company pays their salaries?" Carl asked.

"Certainly—it's impossible to get men to work for nothing," said the flippant president.

"Then they are your agents. You are responsible. Why not be reasonable and send men to take down the posters and repair the damage to my father's newly painted buildings?"

"Nothing doing."

Carl turned quite red.

"I could smack your fat red face and call it square—did that occur to you?" Carl asked.

He didn't see the president glaring, "you may step lively out of here or have these two boys throw you out."

The two "boys" were huskies and they grinned.

Carl possessed good so-called horse sense. He walked out.

Within a very few days Carl, garbed in a workingman's clothes and driving a rather ancient car, arrived in Oakdale. He put up at the village hotel and drove up on the ridge to look over the estate of Horatio W. Smith, president of the Star Advertising Company. It was a pretentious summer home, of stucco and brick. It rested on a knoll overlooking the valley. The keeper lived down in the village.

That night Carl drove up to the place and produced from his car buckets of the stickiest gluey paste ever used. He produced the most glaring posters it had been possible for him to buy—advertising many things from men's underwear to cosmetics and cigarets.

The keeper naturally telephoned the owner the next day and the pompous president of the Star Advertising Company rushed out.

He was furious, almost to the verge of appoplexy.

A dapper young man in a sporty car drove up to the place. He didn't look as though he had been driving most of the night, but he had. It was Carl. He walked up to the owner and nodded.

"Artistic place you have here, Smith," he said.

The owner glared at him and recognized him.

"You— you——" he interspersed loud and naughty words here, "you had this done!"

"Better yet, my dear sir, I did it myself."

"I'll jail you!"

"We'll go together—you for what your agents did to my father's place, you know. Meanwhile," Carl was taking snapshots of it," it will make a good Sunday feature story."

Carl hopped in his car and drove away despite the yells of the man to wait and talk it over.

Carl had no intention of making a story of it. He said that to prevent the man from taking the thing to court.

Nothing more was heard about it. Carl had his father's buildings fixed up and sent the bill to the Star Advertising Company.

Then Flo came back and he forgot everything else.

He met her a couple of times and then went to her city home to dinner. He was to be "inspected" by her father, as she had promised.

"Oh, Dad," Flo cried after Carl had been ushered into the handsome living room.

Both Men Startled

Her father came into the room. He gave Carl one startled look. It wasn't half as startled a look as the one Carl gave him, for Flo's father was Horatio W. Smith, president of the Star Advertising Company.

"You have the nerve to want to marry my daughter!" yelled Horatio W.

"It takes no nerve; rather, it takes nerve to give up the idea of winning her. Mr. Smith. I had no idea you were Flo's father—but even that doesn't change the situation so far as I am concerned."

"Well—well, I'll be damned—"

Mr. Smith choked, tried to speak and ended with laughing.

"Ha, then you're human and regular, after all," Carl said.

Flo had to be told all about it at once.

"Oh, dear," she said, with a sob.

"You want this young man, Flo?" her father asked.

She made it plain that she did.

"Marry him with my consent, then, because you'll marry him anyway, and my opinion is that you've got a mighty smart young man!"

Mr. Horatio W. Smith was quite right about that.

This old world is certainly becoming a beautiful place in which to live—

L. A. Lux, of Cleveland, has taken his genius in hand and invented a device which shuffles a deck of cards and deals out bridge hands when you turn the crank.

But the big trouble with bridge is still the same: The game is too simple and the players are too complex.

Gov. Fisher's Record

His Administration, Disappointing in Some Respects, Has on the Whole Been Creditable.

Speculation as to whether Gov. Fisher will fill vacancies now existing or about to occur in the judiciary, or will leave the appointments to his successor, brings it home that the executive's term is nearing a close. In a little more than a month Gov. Fisher will go out of office.

His administration has brought both disappointments and achievements. It is to be hoped that the new regime headed by Gifford Pinchot will correct the mistakes and emulate the accomplishments.

Most serious of Gov. Fisher's mistakes was his failure to abolish the coal and iron police system. The opportunity came to him to free the Commonwealth from the shame and injustice inseparably attached to the practice of delegating the state's police power to private corporations. He deliberately chose to perpetuate the system. He is directly responsible for its continued existence.

Mr. Pinchot is definitely pledged to the abolition of the system.

The Fisher administration's record in regard to taxation has also been disappointing. The people were given to understand, when the proposed bond issues were to be voted on, that the state treasury had plenty of money and bond issues were unnecessary. Yet in the face of this assurance the gasoline tax was increased.

It remains to be seen what the Pinchot administration will do in respect to taxation. Mr. Pinchot showed in his previous tenure ability to economize without depriving the state of things really necessary to its welfare; so there is encouragement for the belief that the tax burden will not be increased and may be reduced.

The Public Service Commission, during Gov. Fisher's administration, has shown more concern for the earnings of the public utilities than for the protection of the people. Gov. Fisher has said or done nothing in opposition to the commission's policy. But let that pass. He might, with some appearance of truth, disclaim personal responsibility.

Mr. Pinchot has promised to try to change the policy.

Outstanding among the administration's achievements is the work that has been done in extension and improvement of the highway system. The Sun-Telegraph has repeatedly praised this accomplishment as something of which every citizen might well be proud.

The Department of Public Education, the Department of Forests and Waters, the Welfare Department, the Department of Agriculture, the Department of Banking, the Department of Labor and Industry—these and other branches of the state government have also accomplished noteworthy things under Gov. Fisher.

His administration has spent hundreds of millions of dollars of the taxpayers' money without the slightest suspicion of dishonesty. The Governor and the members of his cabinet have proved their integrity. The administration has been unmarred by personal scandal. Let us not foregt that in reviewing the record.

Thanksgiving

Most of Us Have as Much Reason to be Grateful as in Other Years.

Thanksgiving finds some people in a gloomy mood, with cynics asking what we have to be thankful for.

Well, turkeys are only a little less plentiful on the Monongahela wharf than in other years, and prices are somewhat lower.

Most of us have as much reason to be grateful as we generally have. Most of us are employed at our customary wages, and, indeed, are better off than last year because the dollar will buy more.

That, of course, is scant comfort for the unemployed, for those who have lost money through the recession in security prices, and for those merchants and manufacturers whose business is poor.

But the fact is not to be lost sight of that those who are worse off this year than last constitute, after all, a small minority of the population. And they, too, will find many blessings for which to be thankful if they will only open their eyes to them.

New Uses for Wood

Need for Forest Conservation is Emphasized by Developments in Lumber Business.

The National Lumber Manufacturers' Association reports that a mill is being erected at Springfield, Pa., "where wood waste from the woodworking plants within a radius of 150 miles of Pittsburgh will be converted into pulp for the manufacture of various items."

Through a new German process, the report states, sawdust, slabs, cuttings, etc., will be converted, as desired, into mattress stuffing, felt, or a material so hard that it will turn the teeth of a saw and so fire-resistant that when a blow torch is applied it will not burn but melt.

There have been those who did not take the disappearance of our forests seriously because, they said, substitutes would be found for wood. The trend is the other way. Wood is being used as a substitute for other things.

Developments such as that reported emphasizes the need for conservation of our timber resources.

IS OLD MOTHER HUBBARD SCARED TO OPEN THE CUPBOARD?

By Nelson Harding

Old Mother Hubbard
Seems shy of the cupboard
And that makes the little dogs nervous,

They've waited and waited
For findings belated
Come, Mother, and give 'em some service.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Carving the Turkey

If you have a dozen guests, carve the neck into 12 equal portions.

Dip a wing into good, hot gravy and slap the hostess in the face while saying:

"Oh, you like the white meat, don't you?"

Take the carving knife in the right hand and the fork in the left. Then smack them together like cymbals. Look around the table like a weightguesser.

When the turkey slides into a lady's lap, always follow it and continue the conversation.

You will get plenty of advice from moody dieticians on how to carve. In fact, in about a minute the dinner will be in a huddle.

Everybody knows how to dissect the jolly old buzzard except the man doing the needlework. After you have splashed three coats of high-proof gravy on the ensemble you can astonish the folks by sitting down and playing the piano while acting as master of ceremonies in faultless French.

If the bird ain't very big, first heap the guests' plates with mashed potatoes and carrots. Then place a little bit of turkey on the top to serve as a direction flag.

That will give them a rough idea of what a turkey dinner is like. After that you can always dash into a cafeteria and multiply the hospitality by 10.

The trouble with the average host is that he keeps most of the turkey and gives you the divots.

THE NATURE OF THE UNIVERSE

By Archibald Henderson

One of the Greek philosophers, who saw in the heavens the handiwork of God and in the operations of natural law the workings of the Divine Mind, once aphoristically said, "God geometrizes continually." A modern philospher, like Havelock Ellis, sees existence as an esthetic rhythm, a terpsichorean fantasy; and entitles one of his books, "The Dance of Life." In one of his familiar poems, Kipling thinks of God as a supreme artist, and the universe as an artistic masterpiece still in the process of creation. Bernard Shaw realizes God as a struggling, aspiring Life Force, driving ever resistlessly forward toward Godhood.

The various conceptions of God, as represented in these diverse types of thought, find no little support from the discovery and processes of contemporary science. Sir Arthur Eddington and Sir James Jeans, brilliant British representatives of astronomical science today, express in their recent works the thought of Galileo: "Nature's great book is written in mathematical language." Modern mathematical and physical theories—relatively, quantum mechanics, the wave theory of light—all suggest and confirm the essentially scientific structure of the material universe.

The exponents of the higher science of today no longer claim to have arrived at a final, unchangeable explanation of the universe. It is no longer possible to express nature's laws in simple language. The deeper we penetrate into matter, the more complicated, the more inexplicable it becomes. An atom is not a simple structure, it is perhaps the most complex of all structures. If we knew just what an atom was, we might perhaps reconstruct the universe.

The universe is governed by mathematical and physical laws. The scientist of today is baffled in his efforts to visualize a clear picture of the phenomena. Scientists are beginning to realize the futility of attempting to find a model for every phenomenon. Russell, Jeans, Langmiur, for example, all agree that the making of models to explain mathematical formulaes and the phenomena they describe, is not a step towards, but a step away from reality. As Jeans puts the matter, "it is like making graven images of a spirit." The physicist in the laboratory cannot show us an electron; he can only tell us how the electrons behave.

This new view of contemporary science, especially in the fields of mathematical, physical and astronomical science, is happily described by Sir James Jeans in his fascinating new book, "The Mysterious Universe." In this he says, "Our remote ancestors tried to interpret nature in terms of anthropomorphic concepts of their own creation and failed." The efforts of our nearer ancestors to interpret nature on engineering lines proved equally inadequate. Nature has refused to accommodate herself to either of these man-made molds. On the other hand, our efforts to interpret nature in terms of the concepts of pure mathematics have, so far, proved brilliantly successful. It would now seem to be beyond dispute that in some way nature is more closely allied to the concepts of pure mathematics than to those of biology or of engineering, and if the mathematical interpretation is only a third man-made mold, it at least fits nature incomparably better than the two previously tried.

The universe then, to employ Jeans' phrase, appears to have been designed by a pure mathematician. But in saying this, we must understand that the pure mathematician is an artist as well as a scientist. "The laws which nature obeys are less suggestive of those which a machine obeys in its motion than of those which a musician obeys in writing a fugue, or a poet in composing a sonnet. The motions of electrons and atoms do not resemble those of the parts of a locomotive so much as those of the dancers in a cotillion."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Three boys killed their fathers in Milwaukee this year. They were all young; they all killed for the same reason—IN DEFENSE OF THEIR MOTHERS. Gustave Tietz and Joseph Owens were acquitted. William Phillips, however, was sentenced to 14 years at Waupun.

You saw his picture perhaps? A slender youngster of 19, with rather stupid, girlish eyes and a frightened, soft mouth. And the picture of his mother, convulsed with grief.

The judge agreed with her. But he insisted that a boy who would lie in wait and shoot his father—even though that bootlegging father had tortured and terrorized his family for years—was a murderer. So he sent Willie up to Waupun. And now everyone is sorry for poor Mrs. Phillips. I'm sorry for her, too. God help her through the long black nights ahead. And yet—

The wonder to me is that such tragedies are not more frequent! Not because of what some fathers do with their cruelty—BUT BECAUSE OF WHAT SOME MOTHERS DO, WITH THEIR COWARDICE AND THEIR CARRYING ON. Planting hate in baby hearts—

You've seen it happening. A man and woman bound together in miserable bondage. The woman afraid to leave, or too lazy to leave—or hanging on through sentimentality. Queer how we glorify such shameful weakness, just because it happens to occur in a woman. We'd spit on it, if it occurred in a man. So she sticks—with us applauding her. And the misery thickens into loathing and hate, until there isn't a corner of life free from it. Quarrels, night and day. Sneers and tears, curses and blows—Mother, crouching with terror at the sound of a fumbling foot—Mother sprawled, sodden with sobs. And the children creeping close, terrified, bewildered, pitying, trying to comfort her with their weak hands—

Filling their little hearts loyally with hate, to comfort her! And, horribly, that hate does comfort her!

Not being able to hold the man's love she battens on theirs. Not being able to command the man's sympathy, she arouses theirs, by her outcries. Not being strong enough to revenge herself on the man, SHE WORKS HER REVENGE THROUGH THEM AND FINDS HER GRATIFICATION IN THEIR HATE OF HIM.

Thomas Burke once wrote a hideous story. It was about a man who hated and who longed to kill the object of his hate. So nightly he chanted to his little daughter over and over his Hate and his Desire. His Desire was for murder. Driving that desire in and in on her spirit. And at last she did kill—almost automatically—BECAUSE THE THOUGHT OF HATE AND THE THOUGHT OF MURDER HAD BEEN FIXED UPON HER.

Mothers do that to their children with the lash of their tears. They do not train them to murder, but they train them to do that which breeds murder—they train them to HATE. And then, some day, a man is dead. WHOSE FAULT IS IT?

Text For Today

Whoever speaks simply for himself is looking for honor for himself, but whoever looks for honor for the person who has sent him shows his sincerity; there is no dishonesty about him.—John vii: 18.

We Have Lost the Use of Our Toes

Once They Were Useful, as These Japanese Girls Prove.

JAPANESE GIRLS READY FOR THE START. OBSERVE THE "TOE-HOLD."

Your own baby, when little, can pick up an object with its foot, using not only the toe but several toes and the heel together.

Ancient statues show you the big toe widely separated from the other toes. That was due, partly, to the peculiar make of sandals, worn in place of shoes. It was also due to the fact that the big toe was greatly used as a lever in running, jumping, etc.

You will observe that they have their toes bent over the edge of the place from which they are about to dive. Gripping with the toes, as they dive off, will propel their bodies forward and gain a certain number of feet in getting away.

Among savages you may see a man reach out his foot to pick up something with his big toe to save the trouble of leaning over.

If you make the experiment and try hard you will find that in your bare feet you can, about once in three times, pick up a 25-cent piece from the floor by crumpling your big toe over it.

Thousands of savages could do it TEN THOUSAND TIMES IN SUCCESSION.

However, we need not mourn too violently about the loss of our toes as useful implements. We have invented many other tools infinitely more useful.

Our little toe is vanishing already.

Perhaps all of the toes will vanish eventually, and our foot will be round, like that of the horse. He once had several toes. Evolution changed that, according to science.

Man has at least 100,000,000 years to live on this earth, and he is only 12,000 years from the Stone Age. Who knows what we shall be like 10,000,000 years hence?

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Those thatching gray about the temples and collecting crow's feet around the orbs are tickled over the sudden return to the typewriter of that strapping, white-haired author of their youth—Burt L. Standish. Under this pseudonym he turned out the five-cent Frank Merriwells.

In real life he is Gil Patten, from up Bangor way, a two-fisted writing man whose total output exceeds that of any living writer. He is a typical drawling-voiced down Easterner who inspired thousands of boys to become collectors of his Tip Top Library at the cross roads.

Years after Frank Merriwell was only a memory I used to play pool with a crowd which included the late Clare Briggs, the late William Johnston, Ewing Galloway, H. T. Webster, Ray Rohn and Herb Roth. We gathered at an uptown hotel.

Into the game one Saturday afternoon came a fellow they called "Gil." We were casually introduced and as he was about to make a shot someone nudged and whispered: "That's the bird who used to write the Frank Merriwells." I don't recall receiving a bigger thrill.

I cornered him and told of my youthful admiration and he seemed actually surprised anyone had remembered him. Frank Merriwell was dropped because Author Patten had carried him all through Yale and to a happy marriage. Too, the movie pictures came along with a new sort of wallop.

But the pendulum swings back. Patten believed there was a place for a dime weekly fitting into the pocket. The Swift Story Magazine Company was incorporated as a result. The newer hero, modernized, is known as "Bob Hunter or The Boss of the Rum Runners."

Patten at the peak of the Merriwell craze never made more than $100 a week, although that was big reward in Gay Ninety days. It is estimated during his productive years he turned out 40,000,000 words with a lead pencil.

The 5 and 10's now sponsor a group of dime monthly magazines sold only on their newsstands. Two already near the million circulation mark. A chain of cigar stores fosters a full length 50-cent novel and 5-cent weeklies for sophisticates are on the grill.

Hack writers, turning out pot boilers, used to live precariously in cobwebby village attics, working when rent was overdue and idling rest of the time in the candle-lit coffee parlors and waffle shops. With the movies, the hack writer became almost extinct, but due to economic conditions he faces a roseate future.

On a stretch of Riverside Drive elderly twin brothers come to a certain bench daily at sun-down, light pipes and sit in studied contemplation never exchanging a word. At the precise minute nightly they walk away together. "Odd duffers," commented a corner cop. Odd doubtless in this neck of the woods because they mind their own business.

In the dining rooom of a Cincinnati boarding house years ago a fellow diner was a self-effacing and singularly courteous gentleman—the last person one would imagine interested in boxing, horse racing and other sports. Yet it was Frank J. Bruen, who became for a time manager of Madison Square Garden and is the man many believe will succeed to the place held by Tex Rickard in promoting big sporting events.

The painted cheeks and mascara dripping eyelashes of a 34th st. department store floorwalker at 11:45 a. m. were too much. At 1:30 a. m. I still cannot remember what I wanted to ask him.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

There are times when you feel quite alone in the world.

You think that even members in your own family don't understand or feel particularly interested in you.

Of course, you believe that they would stand by you in a crisis.

But in ordinary things, it is your opinion that if they really knew you, they would show more affectionate consideration, and perhaps champion your cause more often.

You have some disagreeable traits, realize it, but know your heart is all right, in fact you think very well of yourself.

On the other hand, it may be because of the intimate knowledge of those closest to you that they do not give you more consideration.

They know you are selfish, self-centered and unwilling to make compromises, also that you demand that those, whom you like, shall be guided by your desires.

The person who thinks he is not understood, is usually using this thought as an alibi for doing the things he should not do.

He can and will be agreeable as long as his wishes are met, but no longer, and this makes him unpopular at home and elsewhere.
